

COMMITTEE OF CITIZENS WAIT ON COUNCILMEN, TO DEMAND CLEANER CITY

INSISTENCE ON LAW ENFORCEMENT TO REMEDY EXISTING IMMORAL CONDITIONS IS KEYNOTE OF RESOLUTION PASSED.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS

In regard to Saloons, Dives and Gambling Places Are Put Up to Mayor Who Professes Ignorance of Conditions—Judge Sale Heads Committee of Fifteen.

RESOLUTION.
"It appearing to the satisfaction of this committee, who represent a large number of the best electors and largest taxpayers of the city of Janesville, that the failure of the officers of the city to enforce the laws of the state and the ordinances of the city, has brought on in this city a condition of disorder and vice that has led and will lead to the perpetration of crimes, endangering the lives of the inhabitants, and property of the citizens of this city;

"That it appears from evidence taken in open court that it is a common practice for a number of saloonkeepers in this city to sell publicly and openly intoxicating drinks to minors, that are drunk upon the premises; that no attempt of the officers of the city has been made to stop, prevent or punish the practice; that public gambling in card rooms and billiard halls is permitted to be carried on by minors and minors permitted to patronize billiard and pool rooms, and that the officers have failed to make complaints therefor or to suppress it;

"That in particular the evidence taken in the municipal court in the proceedings inquiring into the death of Tillie Bergstrom shows that W. A. Knipp, a saloonkeeper, on West Milwaukee street, sold intoxicating drinks to minors, permitting them to drink at his bar; that such practice continued for hours at a time; that minors who are students at the Wisconsin Institute for the Blind, adjacent to this city, were sold intoxicating drinks and permitted to become drunk and intoxicated at the saloon of Finley;

"Therefore, This committee, representing a large number of the very best citizens of this city, demand that the council of this city immediately institute proceedings for the revocation of the licenses granted to Knipp and Finley, and prosecute the same with diligence; that licenses be taken away from saloonkeepers violating the laws of Wisconsin and the ordinances of the city relating to the sale of intoxicating drinks; that gambling be suppressed; that the mayor and council exercise their powers forthwith for the removal of any and all officers in this city who have failed or in the future shall fail to diligently and energetically enforce all the laws in this city in relation to the liquor traffic, the suppression of gambling and vice of all kinds;

"That this committee demand the police and all other officers of this city to perform their duties with energy and diligence, and maintain good order."

The above resolution passed unanimously at a meeting of over a hundred prominent business men at a mass meeting at the city hall last evening indicates that a moral regeneration has begun in Janesville. In addition to the passing of this resolution, which was drafted by Attorney Chas. E. Pierce, on the motion of F. S. Baines it was the sentiment of the meeting that a committee of fifteen, with Judge Sales chairman and the remainder of the committee to be named by the chairman, be named to wait on the Mayor and city council in regard to all conditions touching the moral conditions of the city.

There was a free expression of opinion at the gathering. Questions were asked and answered and the evident intention was to get at the bottom of things with an effort to secure a united backing of the citizens to secure law enforcement. At least a dozen different men spoke in favor of the resolution as presented and none dared to voice any opposition.

Some of the questions as presented to Mayor Fathers and the council as well as the police officers, some of whom were present, were somewhat embarrassing. The answers did not satisfy the attitude of the questioners, and some of the officials were ill at ease at several times during the evening's discussion which lasted an hour and a half.

Mayor James A. Fathers, who with Councilmen Cummings and Miltmore was present at the meeting, called the gentlemen to order. He stated that he had been the intention upon the city company of citizens wait upon the council relative to moral conditions in Janesville as a result of the recent happenings. He was glad that the gathering was as large as it was, although so many were not expected. He referred to the matter of a chairman for the assembly and it was suggested that His Honor act in that capacity. He was agreeable.

Judge J. W. Sale made a few remarks stating clearly the purpose of the session. "I am glad to see the interest which is here manifested," he said. "It has become a notorious fact that our city is not as orderly and law-abiding as it should be. The saloons are violating the law in selling liquor to minors and in other ways. Nothing is being done about it. Other things are going on which

TAKE FOXY FORGER AT GRAND RAPIDS

Nice Appearing Young Man Who Passed Bogus Checks Arrested in Green Bay.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Oct. 12.—I. P. King, a nice appearing young man claiming to be representing the Chas. H. Gillespie & Sons of Jersey City, arrived in this city early in the week and made a favorable impression on his landlord, Charles Dickson, of the Dickson Hotel, to the extent that he cashed a check for $50. Later he passed a check off at the Harvey Gee saloon. After he had left the city it was discovered that the checks were worthless. He was chased to Green Bay and brought to this city and arrested on the charge of forgery. When arrested he had just passed a check for $60 on a saloon keeper there.

MADISON WOMEN NOT ALL FOR SUFFRAGE

Decided Opposition to the Proposed Amendment Is Found Among Leaders of Prominent Clubs.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 12.—That all women of Madison are not in favor of woman suffrage is indicated by the argument in the campaign pamphlet which is sent broadcast throughout the state submitted by the Madison association opposed to the extension of suffrage to women.

The statement is signed by Mrs. Frank W. Hoyt, and Mrs. J. W. Hobbs, wives of two of the Madison bankers; Mrs. S. H. Moore, the well-known author, and by Mrs. Frank G. Brown, Mrs. George C. Constock and Genevieve M. Mills.

The argument is based largely upon protection to the home. The concluding statement says if you desire "safeguard the interest of true womanhood place a cross after the word 'no' of the ballot." Some of the arguments in the pamphlet against woman suffrage are unique. The friends of suffrage are criticised, and the movement in Wisconsin is branded as one financed and started by people outside of the state. The article declares that the suffragists "make a large showing of the small membership."

"Not a single state in the Union and especially no state now having woman suffrage is today the equal of Wisconsin in the suppression of corrupt practices, vice and other evils; and there are few states, if any, so far advanced in laws protecting women in every phase of activity, child labor and welfare. Women in politics could do little or nothing while nature the sex and consequently the nation and the race. Plunge women into politics and you tear down the barriers of convention today. The mothers and the daughters in the home would be the political prizes of any and every candidate. They would have the right to accost and to attempt to persuade."

SALOON MEN FAVOR CLOSING ORDINANCE

Manitowoc Liquor Dealers Are Working to Secure Better Regulation of Their Business.

Manitowoc, Oct. 12.—To head off a movement started by a council meeting local liquor dealers have advised the council that they will present an ordinance at the next meeting for a regulation of the saloons and prohibiting the sale of liquor after hours. The agitation was started when residents in the vicinity of a local palm garden petitioned the council to bar electric pianos and music boxes from saloons at night. Saloon men headed by the retail liquor dealers' association had been working upon the regulation of saloon rules for two years and it is said that the result may be a midnight closing ordinance. At present there is no closing ordinance.

OBSERVE THE CENTENARY OF QUEENSTOWN HEIGHTS.

Delegates representing the patriotic and historical societies of Toronto and other places took part in the exercises on the battlefield, conducted under the auspices of the United Empire Loyalists. Many handsome floral offerings were deposited about the base of the monument erected in memory of Sir Isaac Brock, the famous general who commanded the Canadian forces in the War of 1812 and who received a mortal wound as he was leading his troops to victory in the battle of Queenstown Heights, October 13, 1812.

AGENTS TRACED BY HOTEL REGISTERS

Visits of Accused Agents of Dynamiting Crew in Various Cities Discovered by Names on Registers.

Indianapolis, Oct. 12.—Visits to various cities of men accused of being "advance agents" of the "dynamite crew" were traced through hotel registers by witnesses at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today. Referring to a bulky register, E. L. Shipp, a hotel clerk at Cincinnati, told of the arrival in Cincinnati on May 1, 1908, of Herbert S. Hockin. Hockin is charged with being one of the men who "went ahead" to arrange for explosion. On this occasion Edward Clark, who has pleaded guilty, said he was induced by Hockin to dynamite a bridge at Dayton, Ohio. The explosion occurred three days after Hockin's visit. When Clark was locked up after his arrest on the federal indictment, Hockin, according to the government charges, visited Clark in jail and asked, "Are you talking?" To which Clark replied: "No; but I understand you are."

FIGHTING CONTINUES WITHOUT ADVANTAGE

BERANA TAKEN BY MONTENEGRINS TODAY ONLY TO BE RECAPTURED BY TURKS.

LOSSES VERY HEAVY

Turkish Troops Give Stubborn Resistance Costing One Thousand Men—Text of Note to Turkey from Powers.
London, Oct. 12.—Pierce fighting still continues at Berana, according to a special dispatch from Cetinje today the town has been repeatedly taken by the Montenegrin troops only to be recaptured by the Turks in bloody onslaught. Gen. Lazovitch of the Montenegrin forces has taken the place of Gen. Bosovich who committed suicide when King Nicolas reproved him on the battlefield for wasting ammunition. Reports have been received here from the Montenegrin capital that another sharp engagement has been fought at Tishli, resulting in the temporary repulse of the Montenegrin troops.

Give Stubborn Fight.

The Turkish troops on the frontier are offering stubborn resistance to the latest advances from Podgoritz. The fighting has been of the most severe character, both armies losing heavily. The Montenegrin army is advancing in two columns, one command by Crown Prince Dallo, of Montenegro, operating to the north of Lake Scutari, and the other, commanded by Gen. Martinovitch having its base at Antivari to the south of Lake Scutari. The southern military circles are generally regarded as being in a dangerous operation which will find a great obstacle to its progress in the southern fort at the confluence of the Byana and the Divina rivers. According to the reports from Cetinje, Montenegro, the Montenegrin artillery was far from perfect. During the battle at Detoschich, Mountain, some of the field guns became unworkable owing to the lack of skill of the gunners, which soon put the mechanism out of order. The Montenegrin infantry, however, proved admirable.

Thousand Men Killed.

The heavy fighting involved in the attack by the Montenegrins at the fort at Schipchink Hill, are Rogame and Branya, costed killed and wounded 600 men to the Turks and 400 to the Montenegrins. The arrival of the Montenegrins wounded at the frontier gave rise to rumors in Cetinje that the Montenegrin army had been defeated. Other reports say that villages on both sides of the Byana River, where the Montenegrin general Martinovitch is said to have met with a check from the Turks, are in flames and that Gen. Vukobratovich is operating in the Berana district has crossed the Lim river with his troops.

In the spirit of article 23 of the treaty of Berlin and the law of 1880, the reforms required in the administration of European Turkey and the measures capable of assuring their realization in the interests of the populations, it being understood that the reforms will not affect the territorial integrity of the Ottoman empire."

RED SOX WON THIRD GAME OF SERIES IN THE PENNANT RACE

Capture Game Played in Boston This Afternoon in Jug Step Playing.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 12.—The New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox, the contesting clubs in the 1912 series for the world's base ball championship, jumped over night from New York to Boston into weather conditions which promised to allow the fifth game to be played, and it seemed that the official prediction of the official forecaster of light showers, if any would be fulfilled. The probable order of batting was as follows: Boston, Hooper, rf. Yerkes, Second base, Speaker, cf. Louis, lf. Gardner, third base, Stahl, first base, Wagner, short stop, Garrigan catcher, Bedient pitcher.

New York, Snodgrass, cf. Doyle, Secondbase, Becker, cf. Murray lf. Merkle, First base, Murray, catcher Fletcher, short stop, Mathewson, pitcher. Umpires, O'Laughlin, Rigler, Evans and Klein. There is a little feeling today among the Red Sox against some of the players and people of New York. It is claimed by the Boston men that Fletcher tried to hurt Cady by jumping on him in the sixth inning of yesterday's game. Cady was not hurt but his team mates said Fletcher's intention was plain. They had another grievance on account of the assault of stones and dirt made upon them by the people in the street while on their way to the depot from the polo grounds in automobiles. Buck O'Brien was struck by a stone but suffered only a slight abrasion of the skin. Others escaped being hit.

BECKER GAVE ORDERS TO KILL ROSENTHAL

"BALD JACK" ROSE ON STAND IN BECKER TRIAL TELLS OF ORDERS ISSUED TO HIM.

TESTIFIES TO QUARREL

New York Police Lieutenant Wanted Gambler "Murdered, Shot, Croaked or Dynamited," Says Witness.
New York, Oct. 12.—"Bald Jack" Rose, who says he was Police Lieutenant Charles Becker's collector of graft from gambling houses, told his story on the witness stand today at Becker's trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler. He declared Becker told him: he wanted Rosenthal "murdered, shot, croaked, or dynamited."

"Becker told me," said Rose, "that Rosenthal meant to do what he had threatened after they had quarreled—to squeal and break him."

"We have got to put Rosenthal," he said, "where you nor I nor anybody else will ever have to worry about him again."

Rose said he protested at this, but Becker was obdurate. At Becker's order, he continued, "Bald Jack" Zeig, a gang leader in the Tombs, and got the gun man to kill Rosenthal. "Becker told me to tell the gun men he would frame them up if they did not kill Rosenthal," Rose declared.

There was a craning of necks in the crowded court room of Judge Goff as the bald-headed gambler, Jack Rose, began to testify today in the trial of Lieutenant Becker. Rose said he had known Rosenthal for twenty years and Becker for several years. The witness did not look at Becker as he gave his testimony, but the former police lieutenant watched Rose intently. Rose spoke in deliberate tones. "Did you ever have business relations with Becker?" he was asked. "Yes, I collected money for him."

"I object as incompetent," shouted John F. McIntyre, counsel for the defense. "Overruled," ordered the court. Rose then told of meeting Rosenthal and Becker in the Elks club at a New Year celebration. Mrs. Rosenthal was present. Becker said to Mrs. Rosenthal, according to the witness, "Now don't worry. Herman and I have a thorough understanding. He is my friend and I am his friend and his trouble is all our care."

Rose said he met Becker again at his house and at the Union Square hotel when Becker told him the details of the alleged partnership in a gambling house between Becker and Rosenthal. "Becker," Rose testified, "said Herman had made a proposition to him that he go into partnership with Rosenthal. In running a gambling house and had asked him to invest $5,000 in it. I said no one ever made any money in the gambling business with Rosenthal."

"Becker," Rose continued, "continued the witness, 'did not agree and made a proposition to allow Rose to take a 25 per cent share in the business of the proposed establishment. Becker took a $2,500 chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's property and arranged for a dummy to hold the mortgage.'"

"Becker asked me," the witness went on, "if I would take charge and I said I would."

Threaten a Raid.
The witness told of conversations with Becker in which the police lieutenant inquired what were the profits of the gambling house.

"I reported to him on one occasion that the house had made several thousand dollars," said Rose. "He told me to tell Rosenthal to send him $500. I went to see Rosenthal and Rosenthal said he would not give it because I know all his men and they can't get in here."

"So that's his attitude is it?" Becker said, when I told him this. 'All right, I'll raid it. Tell Rosenthal.'"

Rosenthal's Defiance.
"Rosenthal sent back word by me to Becker. 'Tell that fellow he had better not start anything with me.'"

"The next thing Becker told me was that Commissioner Waldo had called his attention to the place and that he Becker, would have to raid it. 'I told Rosenthal,' and Rosenthal said: 'Tell Becker he can't bluff me. I don't believe Commissioner Waldo ever called his attention to my place.'"

"Several days later Becker told me that complaints were pouring in and that he would have to raid the place. He told me to see Rosenthal and tell him to go him a favor. 'Tell him he has to stand for a raid,' Becker said. 'I did him a favor and he must do one for me. I'll raid the place and it will relieve me from worry and in a few days he can reopen his place and everything will be all right.'"

"Rosenthal said, 'You tell Becker he must think I'm crazy to stand for such a thing. He might as well take a torch and burn it up. It's my place and I'm going to handle it the way I think best.'"

Becker Gets Anxious.
"I saw Becker and told him what Rosenthal said. 'Well, I'm going to raid the place and raid it in a few days—within a week.'"

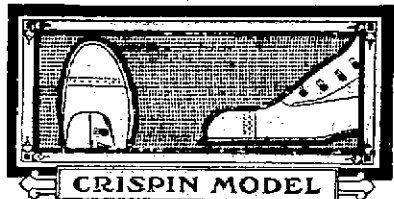

"Becker told me, 'I would only cause trouble and he said, 'Don't you worry about that. It won't cause me any trouble. It will only cause trouble for Rosenthal.'"

"Do you want me to tell that to Rosenthal?" I asked.

"No," he answered, "I'm through with the fellow."

"The house was raided. 'Rosenthal' complained to Becker that policemen still were stationed in front of his place and said he was sore because

Reminiscences of the Civil War Told By Col. E. O. Kimberley

In an article written especially for the Gazette, Col. E. O. Kimberley, one of the best known of the Civil War veterans in this city, gives some of his reminiscences of the early days of the Civil War, before the fighting was taken up in real earnest. The incidents he relates, regarding the farewells to the troops just leaving for the front are interesting, yet not without a touch of pathos. Col. Kimberley's article follows:

By Col. E. O. Kimberley.
"There were many incidents common among the young soldiers of the sixties just prior to leaving their several homes, and soon after their departure for the front—some of which, but more of deepest and unexpressed sorrow and anguish. As soon as it was known that war had begun, in earnest, the one and leading desire was to enlist, an example of which is just now shown among the young Greeks residing in Janesville.

"When our own war began it was something of an effort for sweethearts to say good-bye, but it was a thousand times more of an effort and unspeakably more sad to leave the old home, and say good-bye.

"In those early times of strife everybody and everything was imbued with patriotism. Man, woman and child spoke loyal and patriotic sentences continuously, and wanted never cease singing for their country and flag. Location made no difference with them. Even at church the common hymn would often be set aside for some song of patriotism. One of the first songs written at that time was: 'The first gun is fired, may God protect the right.' At a church meeting one Sunday morning, in a Rock County town, the regular service was 'broken up' and everybody, standing, sang this song, together with some others. If a person would not sing in those exciting times, he or she were made to sing. Music was in the air, and all of one kind. The plowman sang, and the brooks and rivulets took up the refrain.

"Early in the summer of 1861, a long, wretched freight train stood on the railway track at Fond du Lac, Wis., to take on the Third Wisconsin Regiment, enroute to Hagerstown, Maryland, place of temporary destination. There were more than one thousand as brave and ever good on God's footstool. They were uniformed, and rather dressed in a suit of gray, all our state had at that time. Hundreds gathered that beautiful Sunday morning to see us break camp (Camp Hamilton) and make away. They were there to say a final farewell to a great majority.

"The departure of a few of the first regiments seemed to have been heralded forth even to the places of destination. On each side of the railroad everywhere the whole populace appeared, shouting, singing and waving flags and at night there were bonfires. Brass bands and martial music were often in evidence. The first stop out of Chicago, of our double header, profusely decked train, was at Coldwater, Michigan, where a bounteous supper had been provided by the citizens, on a beautiful lawn. Elmira, New York, for breakfast, Buffalo, Erie, Williamsburg, and Harrisburg. In each of these places the most enthusiastic receptions were given us, and it was 'God bless you, boys,' on every hand. Haversacks were filled with some dear mother's cooking, and canteens were replenished. Beautiful flowers were showered upon us in the greatest profusion.

"All the time bands were playing, bells ringing and children singing 'My Country 'Tis of Thee.' At Erie, more especially, the greeting for our 'Badger Boys,' if possible, excelled all other stopping places. We remained there more than an hour, long enough for several of our boys and admiring girls to promise correspondence; and it was a fact that a few of the regiment so fortunate as to escape the multitude of war's dangers for the two and three years in advance stopped off on their veteran furlough, at the places named, to claim their brides; all of which savored of romance. Two or three of the number who returned to the regiment in thirty days were soon after killed in battle.

"The intense patriotic sentiment shown the first soldiers going to the front, belonged in full measure to all from first to last in view of the large numbers of men and commands of every kind constantly on the move, it was found impossible to keep it up, indeed the very men so deeply concerned in cheering us on, had to forthwith buckle on their own armor, and go forth to serve our common country. All soldier-laden trains had the right of way over railroads, and it was a common sight to see the regular trains sidetracked.

"In this little sketch of a remembrance prior to the great war itself there is much for reflection for the writer than cannot be described. We remember vividly the stirring Union songs, such as, 'The Union Forever, Hurrah, Boys, Hurrah,' when we first marched away, and we remember more vividly, as the war progressed, the pathetic song:
We shall meet but we shall miss him,
There will be one vacant chair,
We shall linger to caress him
When we breathe our evening prayer.

The Determination to Do.

SUGGESTS PLAN FOR FOREST RESERVES

Investigation of Project To Care for Consumptives in Northern Timber Lands.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 12.—Dr. M. P. Ravenel of Madison, president of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, has appointed W. Bray of Oshkosh, Dr. J. W. Coon of Wales and Fred L. Holmes of Madison a committee of three to make further study and recommendations in the matter of utilizing the forest reserves for the employment and treatment of convalescent consumptives. In a letter transmitting the appointments, Dr. H. E. Dearholt of Milwaukee, executive secretary of the association says: "The matter of caring for the convalescent consumptive is one of tremendous importance and the proposal made by Mr. Griffith and endorsed by the association is so practical as to promise far-reaching results that will have an effect not alone upon the eradication of the disease from Wisconsin, but will ultimately attract the attention and be adopted by all parts of the world in which the plan is applicable.
"At the conservation congress in Indianapolis the keynote of the meeting was the linking up of the conservation of natural and human resources. It is sufficient to imagine a more practical application of this principle than is here afforded.

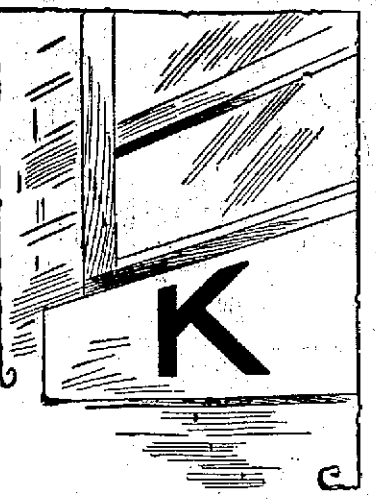

INHERITANCE TAXES EASILY COLLECTED

Estate of Chicago Man Made To Pay Considerable Sum Into State Treasury.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 12.—John Harrington, who has charge of the inheritance tax collections for the state tax commission, has just completed a settlement of the estate of the late Henry Strang of Chicago whereby the state obtains the sum of $2,500 in inheritance taxes on property owned by Strang in Wisconsin. Strang, who died in Chicago a year ago at the age of 90, left an estate of over five million dollars. His Wisconsin property consisted of a home at Lake Geneva worth $50,000 and $30,000 in personal property.
Strang left a peculiar will. At the time of his death he had four children, eight grand children and three great grandchildren. The will provided that the estate should be held in trust until twenty one years after the death of his last lineal descendant who was living at the time of his death. The income in the meantime is to be used for three purposes, one for the education of worthy young people at college, one part for the use of his children and one part for the keeping up of his real estate properties. According to the theory of probabilities the trust will expire in about 75 years.
The case has been one of the most peculiar and difficult that has come before the tax commission.

Presence of Mind.
Watching her house burn down, the woman suddenly bethought her that she had written out a check and left it lying on her desk. Fortunately she could remember the number of it—281. With rare presence of mind she at once called up the bank. "Please stop payment on check numbered 281!" she directed, with the crisp brevity characteristic of those balanced souls who know exactly what they want.—Puck.

SHE'LL BE AN IMPORTANT FIGURE IF LAWRENCE MILL WORKERS STRIKE AGAIN

A prominent figure at Lawrence, Mass., is Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the young woman who last winter organized the striking mill workers at Lawrence and helped lead them to victory. Now there is talk of another strike in the New England mills if Joseph E. Pott and Arturo Giovannitti, the strike leaders accused of having murdered Annie Lopess during a strike riot last winter are convicted. Should there be trouble again Miss Flynn doubtless would play as important a part as she did during the last strike. She believes that E. Pott and Giovannitti are innocent.

Dr. Hartman Writes:

Columbus, Ohio, July 15.—In reply to many letters about my recent article on catarrh and constipation I wish to make the following statement:

Constipation is becoming more prevalent every day. Nearly one-half of the human family are troubled with it more or less. This fact presents a serious complication in the treatment of chronic disease.

Thirty years ago when I was prescribing Peruna every day, only a small fraction of the people needed a laxative. But I have found by experience that more and more a laxative must be used.

Peruna originally contained no laxative element. I used to prescribe the laxative, Manalin, to be used in case a laxative was needed. This necessitated the patient buying two bottles of medicine instead of one.

As constipation became more general I finally concluded to add a laxative element to Peruna. The new Peruna is made with a laxative ingredient. The old Peruna (Katar-no) is without a laxative. On that account some prefer the old Peruna, some prefer the new Peruna.

The new Peruna is for people who have some catarrhal ailment and yet need a laxative. Sold at all drug stores.

The old Peruna (Katar-no) is for those people who have some catarrhal ailment but need no laxative.

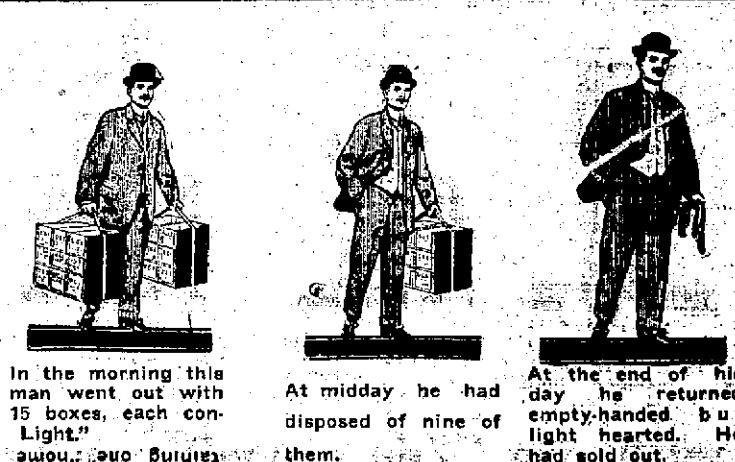

Those wishing to procure the old Peruna should address The Katar-no Co., Columbus, Ohio, for further particulars.

Manager John Kling of the Boston Nationals, may quit baseball. There is a report that he is to be succeeded as manager by George Stallings. If I am not retained as manager, recently declared Kling, and cannot secure my unconditional release I shall retire from baseball.

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world, opines that he will simply tear the liver out of Eddie O'Keefe, the Philadelphia feather, when he meets the latter in Cleveland on October 14. Johnny was all hot up over the panning some of the New York critics gave him following the setto with O'Keefe at New York last month. The feather champ didn't even floor the Quaker City boy. Now he reckons he will show those New York chaps that he's some good after all. Pity poor O'Keefe!

Joe Wood looks like the hero of the world's series. He is a wonderful pitcher, and his like has rarely been seen in baseball. He has a great future before him, for he is still only a youth.

Jeff Tesreau, too, though not the equal of Wood, deserves a lot of credit. Three months ago he was practically unknown. Today he is unquestionably one of the greatest pitchers in baseball.

Wonderful, isn't it, the interest that is taken in the world's series? During the past few days the country has been stirred from ocean to ocean, and literally millions of people have been awaiting with breathless interest the news from the New York and Boston baseball fields. There must be something pretty good in a game that will hold a nation's interest like that.

Mel Brock, the Canadian half-miler, who finished fourth in the 800-metre race at Stockholm last summer, is taking a long rest from racing. Brock's absence from the half-mile at the Canadian championships recently gave Mel Sheppard an easy victory.

Garry Hermann, president of the Cincinnati club in the National league, says Frank Chance, deposed (club manager, is not wanted to manage the Reds next season.

The U. of M. football team will have to do some bracing in the line before the big games of the season if the Wolverines are to make much of a showing against Pennsylvania and Cornell, is the word that comes from Ann Arbor. The right side of the line is especially weak on defense.

Yost plans on playing straight football throughout the season, it is said. The new rules have given him a chance to resurrect some of the formations that he used in the days of Heston. In a modified form, the tandem has been instructed and worked successfully.

Sharpe, varsity wrestler and A. A. U. champion, has come out for the Penn line. Sharpe says that wrestlers have made good on the gridiron, why not he? At Harvard the late Paul Withington was an exceptional wrestler. Alward reached the finals in the A. A. U. championship and lost on points, while Withington has won the New England championship.

FIRST BASKETBALL GAMES ARE PLAYED

All Stars Defeated by Y. M. C. A. Team, and Pirates by White Sox - Fast Playing Done.

Two games marked by keen rivalry and fast and spirited playing inaugurated the opening of the basketball season in Janesville last evening the All Stars going down to defeat before the Y. M. C. A. team, and the White Sox worsting the Pirates. Both games were played at the Y. M. C. A. hall. Interest was liveliest in the game between the Y. M. C. A. team, made up in the main of members of the Lakota club's Cardinal championship team and the All Star team, composed of last year's players in the winning high school team. Both "eyes" went into the game keyed to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and neither side scored for several minutes. Cunningham made the first basket, the All Stars soon retaliating with another. Cunningham came back with a second which was followed with one by Greene, and the first half ended with a score of 6 to 4 in favor of the Y. M. C. A. team.

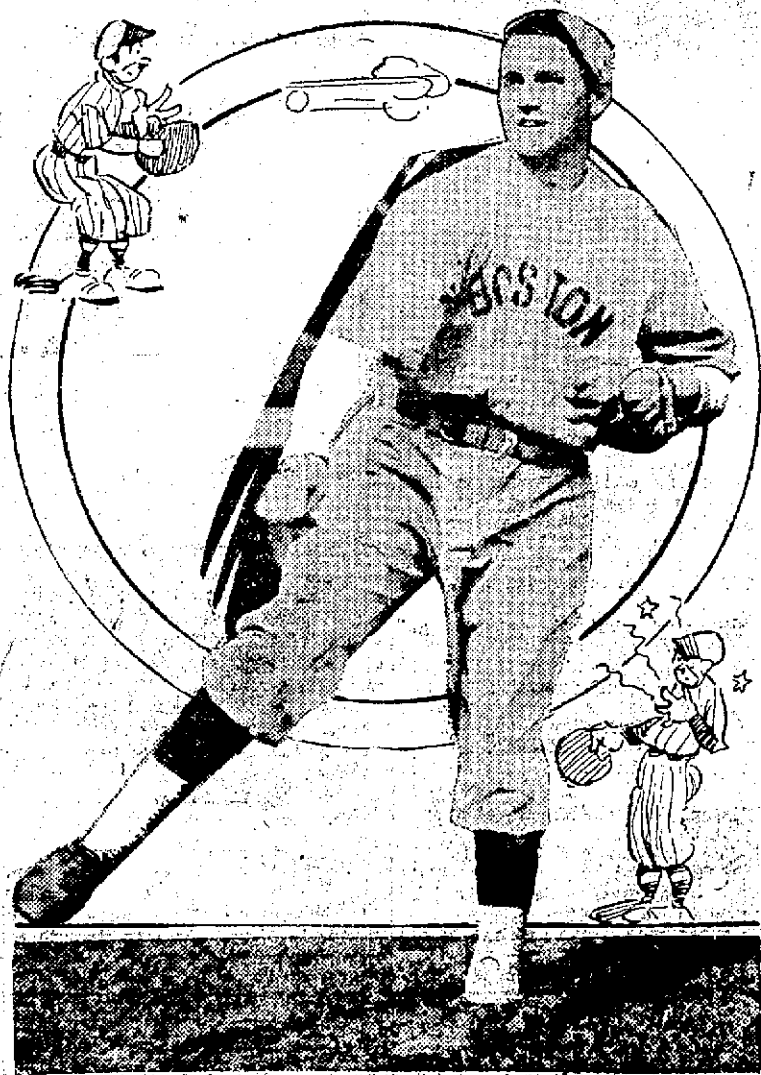

Fast playing and more basket throwing characterized the second half of the game. A successful throw by Wilkinson tied the score, but from this time on the Y. M. C. A. gradually drew ahead of their rivals. Greene showed great skill in throwing baskets, dropping the ball safely inside the net not less than five times in twenty minutes. The game ended with the score 26 to 16 in favor of the Y. M. C. A. team. The line-up was as follows:

Y. M. C. A. ALL STARS.
Greene, lf. Alwood
Cunningham, rf. Smith
Langdon, lg. Wilkinson
Booth, lg. French
Brown, rg. Falter
Field goals—Greene, 6; Smith, 7; Cunningham, 4; Langdon, 2; Brown, 1; Wilkinson, 1.
Referee—Hartwell. Time of halves 20 minutes.

The curtain raiser contest between the White Sox and the Pirates ended in a score of 27 to 8 in favor of the White Sox. The latter did not step into the lead until near the close of the second half when their close team work and good shots made their scores pile up rapidly.

The line-up was as follows:
WHITE SOX. PIRATES.
McKeigue, lf. Koch
Dalton, rf. Souham
Bleasdale, cf. Kuhlrow
Rau, lg. Mohr
Stickney, rg. Stewart
Field goals—McKeigue, 4; Dalton, 3; Bleasdale, 2; Kuhlrow, 2; Souham, 1; Koch, 1; Rau, 2; Stickney, 2; Poul goals—McKeigue, 1.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
They're somethin' kindo' hearty-like about the atmosphere
When the heat of summer's over and the coolin' fall is here—
Of course we miss the flowers, and the blossoms on the trees,
And the hum of the hummin'-birds and buzzin' of the bees;
But the air's so appetizin', and the landscape through the haze
Of a crisp and sunny morning of the airy autumn days
Is a picture that no painter has the colorin' to mock—
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock.
The husky, rusty rustle of the tassels of the corn,
And the raspin' of the tangled leaves, as golden as the morn';
The stubble in the furries—kind o' lonesome-like, but still
A-preachin' sermons to us of the barns they grewed to fill;
The strawstack in the meadow, and the reaper in the shed;
The hoes in their stalls below—the clover overhead!—
Oh, it sets my heart a-clickin' like the tickin' of a clock,
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

The month of October has been closely associated with James Whitcomb Riley ever since the now famous Indiana poet wrote the little story in verse, so full of human interest—"When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock."

Mr. Riley recently celebrated his 60th birthday anniversary and the event was generally recognized by the schools of the land, for Riley's poems are a part of every school's equipment. Some one familiar with his early history says that one morning, years ago, he was wandering around the streets of a western town in apparently an intoxicated condition.

An officer arrested him, and on the way to the lock-up was met by a kind-hearted gentleman who, soon discovered that he was sick and not drunk. So he put him in his carriage and took him home. When told that his name was Riley, he was much surprised to learn that his guest was the Hoosier poet.

A week later, while they were strolling through the fields and enjoying the atmosphere of a bright October morning, Riley sat down by a tree and wrote the little tribute to the choicest month in the year.

This particular poem of Riley's is strong because it is not sentimental. Every line sparkles with a reminiscence, which comes to the men and women who spent their early life in the open, on the farm, as a choice memory, and as they read it, they live over again the days of other years.

There's something about the month of October that is different from any other month in the year. It is the month of fruition, when the balance sheet is made out, and the preceding months are called in review to give account of themselves.

The month when tired nature ceases to work, and the silent forces retire from active service to find rest and recuperation under a mantle of frost and snow.

In this year of our Lord nineteen hundred and twelve, the months have all been propitious. The seed time of spring was followed by a season of rare growth and development, and the granaries of October are crowded with the fruitage of the year. It was good to be alive, when Riley wrote his famous tribute, and it is good to be alive today.

The glad month of May, and the roses of June, the ambition of poets, and start the army of tramps on their annual pilgrimage. They are the restless months, when all nature, free from the lethargy of winter, comes into the arena as a full-fledged working force.

This spirit of restlessness is contagious, and the boys and girls of the land partake of it. The spring-time of life and the spring-time of the season beat in harmony, and it is perfectly natural for ambition to develop, when all nature is on the move.

The boy longs to escape from his narrow environments, and the girl yearns for the shut-in life which envelops her. Day dreams haunt them, and castle-building inspires them, and it they ever need wise counsel and the strong guiding hand of wisdom, tempered with patience, it is in the spring of the year, in the spring-time of life.

But October is a staid and dignified month. Nature has ceased to be gay. The song of birds is an echo of the past, and the golden harvest, gathered and stored away, is the silent evidence of work accomplished.

The span of human life has often been compared to the passing of the seasons and the analogy is very appropriate.

The buds and tender plants of early spring, require constant care and watchfulness and typify the helplessness of childhood.

The sturdy growth of plant life, in early summer, and the gorgeous array of blossoms, giving promise of a bountiful harvest, represent the ambition of youth and the period of preparation for the active years ahead.

The hot, dusty summer, when nature puts to test the offspring under her care, and when some lag and drop out by the wayside, while others go on to maturity and full fruition, is like the work-a-day period of existence, where men and women struggle under the burdens and heat of the day, inspired by hope and fired with ambition to work out a destiny.

The early autumn puts on the finishing touches and the children of nature prepare to give an account of their stewardship. Mature life is engaged in the same serious work and then comes the October of life, when the "sear and yellow leaf" are silent tokens of work completed.

Passing along a country road, not long ago, an old granary standing near the roadway on the edge of a neglected field, was noticed. It was in a dilapidated condition, unfit for occupancy, and the farm equipment of which it was a part, gave evidences of neglect and shiftness.

This tumble-down old building typifies some lives in the autumn period of existence, and suggests that if ripe age is crowned with a golden harvest, that the seasons of preparation, as well as the seasons of activity, must be intelligently improved.

Reaping follows the sowing, and if but little is invested the harvest is always meagre, and the October of life is disappointing. It pays to prepare for work during the years of preparation, as well as to work with a will and a purpose when the sun is at its zenith; then will the aftermath be filled with peace and content. The failing leaves and edge of winter have been dedicated, in verse by George Cooper, in the following breezy triplet:

October gave a party. The leaves by hundreds came—
The Ashes, Oaks and Maples, and leaves of every name.
The Sunshine spread a carpet, and everything was grand;
Miss Weather led the dancing; Professor Wind the band.

The Chestnuts came in yellow, the Oaks in crimson dressed;
The lovely Misses Maple, in purple, looked their best.
All balanced to their partners, and gayly fluttered by;
The sight was like a rainbow new fallen from the sky.

Then in the rusty hollows, at hide-and-seek they played,
The party closed at sundown and everybody stayed.
Professor Wind played louder; they flew along the ground,
And then the party ended in jolly "hands all round."

MORAL SUPPORT.
The meeting at the city hall last night was most significant, because it represented public sentiment in the vital question of public morality. The men present represented every calling, and all were intent on the single purpose of demanding the enforcement of law.

The feeling is extant that the city authorities have been deluded by the false impression that the people wanted a wide open town, and so have neglected to enforce the laws which attempt to suppress vice and crime.

The meeting last night was intended to correct this false impression, and had a mass meeting been called, no hall in the city would have held the crowd, for the people are aroused and in deadly earnest.

No one questions the honesty of the commission, or the good intentions of the mayor, but good intentions amount to nothing unless they are executed, and the ignorance of conditions, displayed by the officials was deplorable.

The same as last year.
According to Uncle Abner.
It ain't so hard to be pleasant if a feller has got an automobile, a steam yacht and about nine million dollars.
When a feller goes away and makes a national reputation for himself in his own particular line, it is always consoling for him to go back to the old home town and have seven or eight old lads ask him: "Well, boy, what ye a-doin' fer a livin' now?"
For a lazy man's job there ain't nothing that beats coloring a meerschaum pipe.
The fellers that never tried to raise chickens are always sorry they didn't and the fellers that did try are sorry they did.
Our postmaster says bein' postmaster is an expensive job. Every time Uncle Ezra Harkins comes in fer a letter, which is every day, he eats a pound of codfish and a handful of crackers and a helpin' of cheese. Uncle Ezra hasn't got a letter in nine years.
Amry Tibbs, our well known and versatile inventor, has been working eight years on a nonpuncturable pneumatic automobile tire. He expects to have the invention complete and on the market before he dies. But he will have to live to be an octogenarian.
Speakin' of wheels, Miss Pansy committee of fifteen to be appointed by Judge Sale, are intended to dispel this kind of ignorance, and to inspire the city authorities with courage and determination to enforce the law.
It is the sort of moral backing that is needed, and indicates that the people have at last begun aroused to a sense of personal responsibility. But the good work must be carried on and in order that the committee of fifteen, as well as the city authorities, may have an expression of public sentiment the Gazette publishes in another column a voting coupon which explains itself. Vote yes or no, and if so inclined attach your name, but vote and return to this office in the interests of a better and cleaner city. The committee and the city authorities need your moral support.
Made His Demands Definite.
The "minimum wage" idea appeals to one English boy who was asked the other day by his teacher to write, as the daily composition, a letter to his father asking for an increase in pocket money. The boy set forth the need of large funds, and ended with a courteous demand for a "minimum sum of money." One of the reasons for the demand was that the boy did not get enough taffy to eat and had no papers to read.
Limit to His Foolishness.
Wife—You say I ought to practice economy, John. Now, what did your dinner downtown cost you today? Husband (a trifle weakly)—About three dollars. Wife—Heavens, John, three dollars just for a dinner? Husband (a trifle indignantly)—Well, that included a bottle of wine, of course. (More indignantly) You don't s'pose I would pay three dollars just for food, do you?—New York Sun.
LAFOLLETTE MAN WITH DEMOCRATS

Rudolph Spreckles.

Tibbits, who has been takin' a coolin' school course, made four mince pies the other day which were so hard that her brother made a go-cart for the kid and used the pies for wheels.

Fail.
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the overcoat's in hock
And the chilly breeze doth whip around the city's business block
When he feels town in his pocket and he cannot find a cent
Then feller wonders where his summer's salary has went.

In the spring he always says that he'll no longer be a slave;
That he will pile up a fortune; all his summer's coin he'll save.
But each year the autumn breezes bring with them the same old shock.
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the overcoat's in hock.

Opportunity.
Dey say dat opportunity knocks once at each man's do'.
An' knocks jes' once an' goes away an' don't come back no mo'.
Dat may be so, but jes' de same, Ah entertain a doubt,
Fo' ef she evah called on me she called when Ah was out.

Ah thinks dat opportunity done git her dates all mixed.
She knocks at one man's do' so much he has to get it fixed.
De next man may be waitin' fo' to entertain her call,
But his house ain't upon her list an' she don't come at all.

She calls on some folks every day and knock till she am so;
She rings de bell and toots a ho'n and den breaks down de do'.
Ef dey don't spond and let her in, she takes it in her hand
To go up stairs and grab 'em quick an' drag 'em out of bad.

Ah tells you what, if dat ole gal should come aroun' mah place
She'll find me waitin' at de do' to grab her rou'n' de wais'.
Ah'll hang right on jes lak Ah's gwine to choke her plum to deff,
She'll have jes' one affinity, an' dat will be mahself.

But listen, little chillun all, et do not pay to wait.
Pes' staht right out an' look fo' her an' mbs' as sure as Fate,
She'll be jes' rou'n' de cohnar an' be glad to welcome you.
Dat's what mos' folks dat meets ole Opportunity must do.

Lucky to Reach the Tree.
Owing to a sudden flooding of the valley of Klein-Dietwil, Switzerland, three peasants engaged in hay-making were forced to take refuge in a tree, where they remained forty-eight hours. Pontoons were launched as soon as the men were missed, but the rush of water was so great that it was impossible for a time to reach them.

Oriental Rugs:
Don't be hasty in buying Oriental Rugs. It is a question not to be decided in a moment. Time for the consideration of quality, the colors and the design is absolutely essential. An Oriental rug is an article of value, because of its durability, not necessarily expensive, but the expenditure required is frequently large, and considering the question from a purely commercial point of view the selection should not be made hastily. Another very important point to consider is the color harmony, and whether it contains the shades most likely to make its future valuable in your decorative schemes. Hasty selection is often times responsible for repenting at leisure.
Two magnificent specimens of Oriental art in our windows.
It is an open secret that the people who patronize the rug men who travel from place to place giving sales in stores pay fancy prices for Oriental rugs.

ALLEGED MURDERERS HELD FOR TRIAL IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

HARRY BERGER AND EDWARD MEYER BOUND OVER TO CIRCUIT COURT AND HELD IN JAIL WITHOUT BAIL.

TRIAL IN NOVEMBER?

Were Bound Over For Next Regular Term, Which Is February Term, But Efforts Will Be Made To Secure Immediate Trial.

Edward Meyer and Harry Berger, the young men charged with the murder of Matilda Bergstrom on the night of September 30, were this morning bound over to the circuit court for trial at the conclusion of their examination in municipal court this morning, and will probably be tried on the charge of murder at the October term, which has been adjourned, for jury cases, until November 13. The young men were held by the court until the first day of the next regular term of court, which is the February term, but in order to secure trial as soon as possible, an effort will be made to have the case put on the circuit court calendar for the October term. Both were committed to the county jail without bail. In holding them for trial, Judge Charles E. Field stated that the testimony showed that there was reasonable and probable cause to believe that an offense had been committed, that offense being murder, and that there was reasonable and probable cause to believe that the defendants might be found guilty of the charge.

Only one witness was examined this morning, William Knipp, proprietor of a saloon at 415 West Milwaukee St., being summoned by the state. The state rested its case after Mr. Knipp's testimony, and Thomas S. Nolan, attorney for the defendants, waived the right of further examination.

In the examination Wednesday, one of the witnesses, Ed. Bladorn, stated that he and the defendants had been in the Knipp saloon on the night of the alleged murder, and that beer had been sold to the defendants. The examination of Mr. Knipp as to whether or not the young men had been in the saloon on the night of September 30, by Mr. Knipp's recollections, according to his answers, were decidedly vague. He did not recollect of seeing the trio in the saloon that night or selling liquor to them.

"Could you say positively that they were not there?" he was asked. "I can't recollect," was the reply. "Well, could you say positively they were not in the saloon?" he was asked again. "I was his reply, after a minute's hesitation. The witness' memory seemed to fail him also as regards the time he was behind the bar that night, as to whether he had sold liquor to anybody he knew, and as to whether there had been anyone in the saloon at closing time. At the conclusion of Knipp's testimony, District Attorney Dunwiler moved that the defendant be bound over for trial.

VAIN ATTEMPT MADE TO COMMIT BURGLARY

Well Placed Bolt Defeated Efforts of Burglar Who Picked Lock At Office of Dr. E. W. Sartell.

A well placed bolt forestalled the attempt of a would-be burglar to break into the office of Dr. E. W. Sartell over Sherer's drug store last evening. He tried off the cleats on the outside of the door, removed the plate over the keyhole and jammed out the wood around the lock and introduced some instrument by means of which he was able to open it. All his efforts availed for naught, however, as the door was bolted at the top. The attempt at robbery was discovered by Dr. Sartell as soon as he opened his office for business this morning.

APPLEBY PLEASED TO HAVE COMMITTEE TO AID IN THE LABOR

Of Cleaning up The City—Asks Correction of False Impression Relative to Bergsterman Case.

Chief of Police George M. Appleby today expressed himself as well pleased with the idea of having Jansville and a committee of fifteen citizens to make suggestions to the Mayor and Chief of Police relative to cleaning up the city of its undesirable elements. He made the following statement over his own signature: "I am in sympathy with the efforts of citizens to clean up Jansville and keep it clean and think the plan to have a committee of fifteen, headed by such a man as Judge Sale, will be a most admirable step in this direction. I would however like to state that the gentlemen who spoke at the meeting last evening told a good many truths. Some things however were misstated. Probably not intentionally. Mr. Pierce stated that the police were indifferent as to securing evidence in the Bergsterman murder. I had arrested both Meyer and Berger and had their confession and statements of their guilt before witnesses before the district attorney. I am just as anxious to go after saloon proprietors that violate their licenses as any one and have arrested a good many but only to see them escape punishment through the work of clever lawyers and bad judges. I am just as anxious to secure good trials in future cases and obtain convictions. If the people will stand behind the police department we shall be able to show the public that the city can be cleaned up and kept clean. I have the best interests of Jansville at heart and all I have in the world to live for, my wife and family are here. I welcome the changed conditions most heartily."

HURT IN EXPLOSION AT SUGAR FACTORY; HOLE BLOWN IN ROOF

Edward Schutt, Steam-fitter, Badly Burned About Face, Neck, and Hands This Morning.

Edward Schutt, a steam and pipe-fitter employed at the factory of the Rock County Sugar company, was severely burned about the face, neck, and hands shortly after nine o'clock this morning through the bursting of a steam pipe known as a "goose neck" in the upper part of the boiler house. A jagged hole about 5 by 2 1/2 feet was blown through the roof. Dr. Charles Sutherland, who was at once called to attend him, summoned the ambulance and had him conveyed to Mercy hospital. The extent of the injuries to Mr. Schutt's eyes and ears can not be determined at the present time. He will be incapacitated for work for some time, but Dr. Sutherland has hopes that his features will not be permanently scarred.

One report of the accident is to the effect that Schutt was blown through the roof of the boiler house and landed on the tin roof of the covered passageway that connects the boiler house with the factory. This was not credited at the company's office, where it was stated that Schutt was found walking around in the yard immediately after the accident. He was in such condition, however, that he had to be carried to the ambulance. Another workman climbed up and shut the steam off as soon as possible after the accident, which did not interfere with or interrupt the operation of the factory.

Schutt was but recently married. He has numerous friends who have made anxious inquiry as to his condition.

Mr. Flynn with this address will open his health campaign in Jansville and will speak each evening during the coming week through Thursday. He is here under the auspices of the Gazette and the Jansville ministers.

High school students are loud in their praise of Mr. Flynn following the address he made to them on Friday. They are proving a most effective means of advertising this great speaker who is renowned as the Billy Sunday health evangelist.

"I'm Irish," said Mr. Flynn yesterday, "and I've got to make people laugh. I can't help cutting up a few antics."

"Daddy" Flynn as he is generally known will be a favorite in Jansville. It will pay every man who can get there to hear him Sunday. The other meetings during the next week will be open to both men and women.

MISS M. CHITTENDEN SUMMONED BY DEATH

Well Known and Beloved Jansville Woman Passed Away at Mercy Hospital This Morning.

Miss Melissa Chittenden, a well known and greatly beloved Jansville woman, prominent in church and fraternal work, died at Mercy hospital at 7:45 o'clock this morning, following an illness with typhoid fever. Miss Chittenden had been in poor health for more than three months, but was not confined to her bed for more than eight days. Her brother, Dr. G. G. Chittenden of Twisp, Washington, was sent for when her condition was known to be critical but was not able to arrive here until 9:20 o'clock this morning, nearly two hours after she had passed away.

Surviving Miss Chittenden are her brother, Dr. G. G. Chittenden, the only living member of the family, and a nephew, George E. Burton of Washington. D. C. Miss Maria Gibbs, who for many years made her home with the Chittenden family, accompanied Dr. Chittenden from his home to this city.

Funeral services will be held at Christ Episcopal church at two o'clock Monday afternoon. The Rev. John McKinney will officiate.

The Eastern Star lodge of which Miss Chittenden was a member, will conduct the service at the grave, burial being made in Oak Hill cemetery.

KNIPP PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE

Saloonkeeper Arrested For Selling Liquor To Minors Appeared In Court—Case Was Adjudged.

W. A. Knipp, proprietor of a saloon at 413 West Milwaukee street, appeared in municipal court this morning and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of violating section 6, chapter 28 of the Revised Ordinances of the City of Jansville, prohibiting the sale of liquor to minors.

Knipp had been called as a witness in the Meyer and Berger case, and at his request, the case against him was called soon after, at half past nine o'clock. The complaint filed by City Attorney Dougherty charged Mr. Knipp with selling liquor to Edward Meyer and Harry Berger, minors, on the night of Sept. 30. The case was adjourned for trial next Friday morning at nine o'clock, but the jury in the case will be picked Thursday afternoon.

The calling of the case was delayed somewhat as Mr. Knipp expected J. J. Cunningham to appear as his attorney, but was finally called without waiting for an attorney. Mr. Cunningham, who appeared at the court, stated that he had not agreed to take up the case.

The civil action of the Milwaukee Western Fuel Company against Hannaway Miller, a Beloit case, brought here on a change of venue, was adjourned to Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

The Way Out.
A painstaking mother of two children was attempting to give them a serious idea of her anxiety to make them good, and to make plain to their minds the gravity of the task before her. Overcome with the possibility of ever attaining her mother's ideal, three-year-old Frances answered in all earnestness: "Don't try to make us good, mother; just shoot us."—Everybody's Magazine.

ELLIS USHER'S LETTER IS MOST INTERESTING

(By Ellis Usher.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 12.—The political mix-up in Wisconsin beggars description. I met Victor Berger on the street one evening this week and found him serenely confident that the Socialists will carry the county and elect both Congressmen. With the "non-partisan" Republican candidates running as Democrats on the ballot, and the McGovern faction having nominees running as Republicans, while some of them say they are for Taft, some of them for the Bull Moose and some of them for Wilson, there doesn't seem to be any way for the average man to wend his way through the labyrinth. The anti-McGovern and Anti-Socialist combination which calls itself "non-partisan" expects "Ikey" Karel to carry this county by a big enough plurality to pull the whole ticket through, even to Congressmen, so the expectations are as wide apart as the poles. A man who attended a moving picture theatre here, the other night, where there were 2000 in the audience, said that a score of pictures of "Teddy" at home at Oyster Bay, riding horseback, chopping a tree etc., didn't raise a single handclap. It was received with utter complete silence. In my own experience, if a half dozen men are gathered together, and one says—"I'm sure, I don't know how to vote, this year," he will find that half the men in the party either agree, or they don't care a rap. One striking thing is that so many people are looking to their political enemies for assistance. The Wilson men have only the hope of getting the La Follette vote; McGovern's hope is that the Schmitz Democrats; Taft's hope is that "Bob" won't bolt, and there you have it. The Taft men are making a howl for protection worthy of twenty years ago, while Wilson is very careful to emphasize that he's no free trader. There is certainly nothing in his cross-eyed platform to interest any man who believes, as I do, that there never will be a reduction of the tariff until some party dares to be honest enough to hoist a free trade flag and make no apologies. But that's personal opinion, and fits nobody's politics, this season. Protection is here to stay, apparently, and to it are traceable most of our political diseases. Socialism, among the rest. The doctrine of making laws to provide for sunshine, and good crops and high wages, is right on to the Socialist theories. It all tends to fictitious values and higher taxes, which helps to raise the cost of living.

Mr. Taft says the new corporation tax brings in $20,000,000. Mr. Yoakum says the railroads pay $50,000,000 increased taxes. We know that Wisconsin has increased railroad taxes, life insurance taxes, and other bank and corporation taxes, and added inheritance taxes, income taxes and taxes on the man who buys a shirt. We know that the man who buys a shirt pays his part of the taxes of the corporation that made it. The corporations and the railroads have no money factories, any more than the rest of us. High taxes breed extravagance, but there will be a pay day.

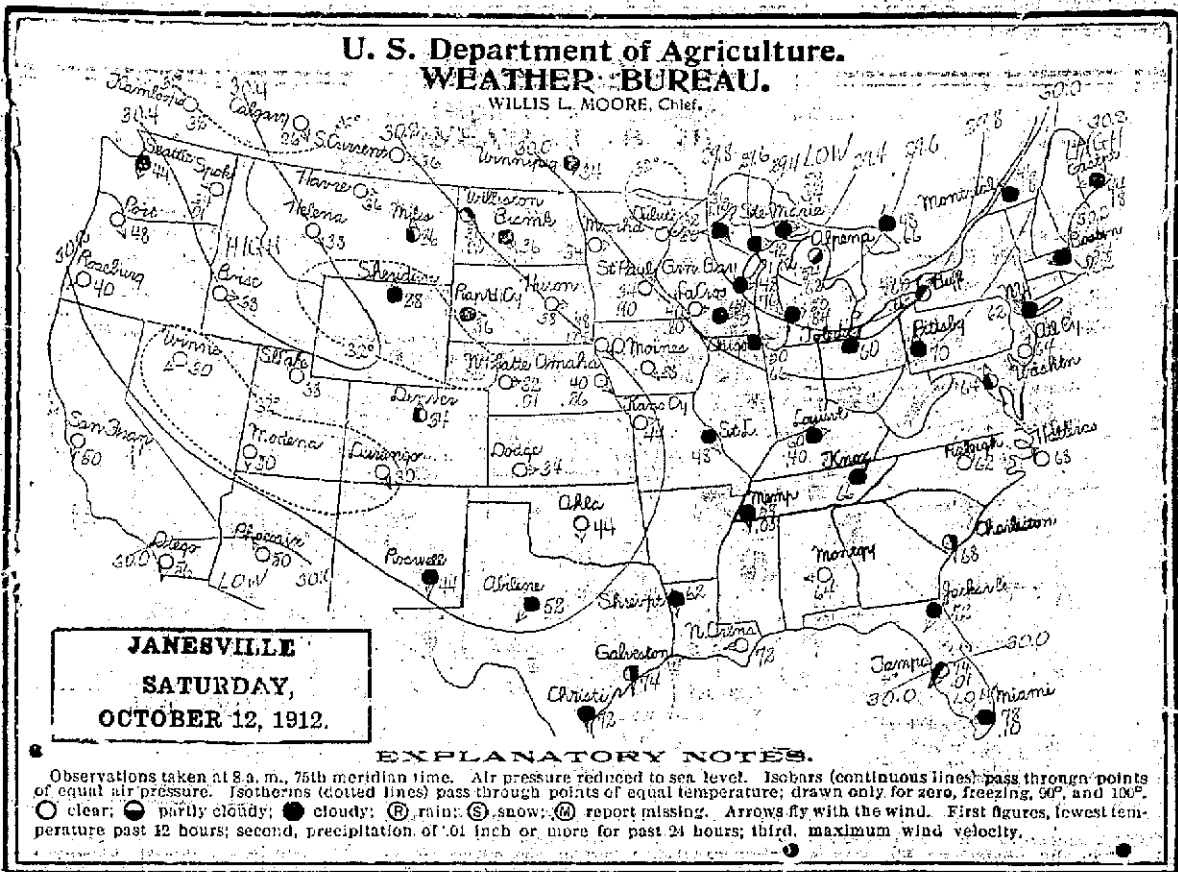

When, for example, the Erie road pays out almost a half million in increased taxes, in a year, that half million has to come out of its increased earnings, just as its report for last year shows it did, and it has to borrow that much more to use in making betterments, new double tracks, and so on. It ought to be plain that, as far as the public is concerned, the tax like the argument, runs around in a circle, and ultimately lands on the fellow who buys the flour or the goods shipped over the Erie, and the ultimate effect is to raise the cost of the flour and the goods, because the Erie has had work to borrow money anyway, and so does every other railroad because of constantly growing expenses. The directors of the Erie have just authorized the issuance of $4,000,000 of equipment trust certificates in addition to the $2,000,000 authorized last month. There is more "short time paper," and the ultimate cost of it is less, even at high rates, than money can be had for, on long time bonds. But the Erie is bound to keep up with the procession, and be ready for the additional freight it can.

The Catskill Mountains

is the title of a beautifully illustrated book which has been published by one of our eastern railway companies and is in the hands of the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU for distribution. These mountains, made famous by Washington Irving in his tales of the Legend of Sleepy Hollow and Rip Van Winkle, are declared by many travelers to be the most picturesque mountain region on the globe, and the person who has never had the pleasure of a trip to the haunts of Rip Van Winkle will be filled with a desire to make a trip eastward which will include a sight seeing tour, if not a sojourn at some of the delightful points described in this book.

From the origin of the name Catskill, and primeval history of the mountains, to the description of the hotels and retreats in the mountains, which civilization has built for the convenience and recreation of man, all is given in this book in a way that absorbs the reader's attention.

October 12, 1912.—The storm that was central over the lower Missouri valley yesterday has passed over Wisconsin and is now over the Lake Region. It was attended by showers and thunderstorms, and brisk to high winds in the North Central states. An area of high barometer occupies the Western states, and is accompanied by generally fair weather west of the Mississippi. The weather has been fair in the south.

Heredity.
Some very pretty things are being said, for no special reason whatever, about genealogy and heredity. Naturally this is associated with the names and life of what is called the "nobility." Yet no commentator has quoted the couplet of Pope, which reads: "His ancient but ignoble blood has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood."

A Paraphrase.
"What is the meaning of that quotation, 'There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them as we may'?" "Well," replied Senator Borah, "the proposition is something like this: It's easy enough to pass a law, but you don't know what it's going to be till the Supreme court gets through with it."

Holland's Flag.
Holland's flag is also the emblem of liberty, but nobody knows how during the long centuries the orange became changed to red.

Marriage a Failure?
The statisticians inform us that there is an increasing tendency toward divorce, but the very worst divorce tables show that 12 couples out of every 100 get divorced within 20 years of the marriage day. But look at this statement from another angle. There are 88 couples who do not get divorced. And so, is marriage a failure? Hardly!

Why we handle The Favorite

Being a Story of How We Were Convinced

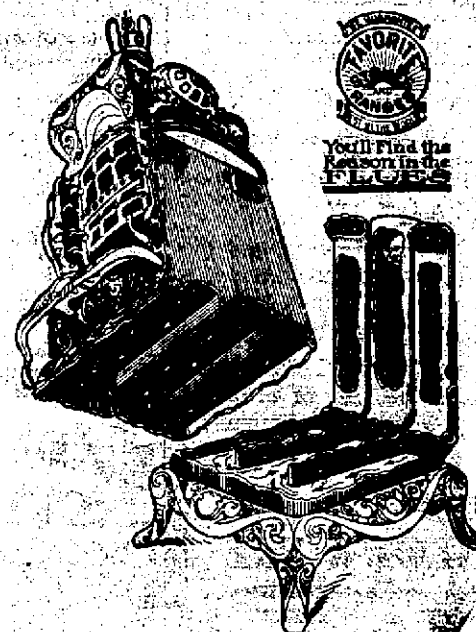

First, we were attracted by the handsome appearance of the Favorite, but we did not decide to handle it for this reason alone, although we decided it was the most handsome base burner on the market. We wanted a better reason than an attractive looking stove, so we looked it over thoroughly, comparing it point by point with other base burners, and this is what we found:

That the material from which it is made is all of the highest grades—the doors, mica frames and joints being absolutely air and paper tight.

We were told the Favorite produced the most satisfactory results with about half as much coal as other base burners. We discovered this to be true. We found the reason to be in its Triple Exposed Flues. The sectional cut herewith explains these flues better than we can in words. The heat passes from the fire pot into the two outside down flues, across the bottom of the stove, under the ash pan, where it enters the central flue. It then passes back over the bottom and up the central flue to the chimney. Just think of this great radiating surface, and it is more than doubled, because the flues are SET OUT from the back of the stove. The flues therefore radiate from all sides, and the back of the stove radiates heat, also. This feature alone places the Favorite in a class by itself, making it the best and most economical heating stove in existence. But other features of its construction must not be overlooked. Would like to tell you all about them.

Do not put off buying your heating stove until the cold days come. Come and see us now, and our Favorite will be your Favorite too.

CITIZEN COMMITTEE WAIT ON COUNCIL; DEMAND CLEAN CITY

ought not to be allowed. We cannot afford as citizens of this city to have such crimes occurring as took place here last Monday night a week ago.

"It is reasonable to suppose, that the boys who are charged with this murder did the deed under the influence of liquor which incited them to the crime. This is not the only case. Liquor is being continually sold to persons under age, houses of ill-fame are allowed to operate, boys are allowed to play pool and billiards contrary to law, gambling and slot machines are prevalent. It is up to us to see that our laws are enforced, that our boys and girls are protected. All that we ask, gentlemen, is obedience to the law. It is not unjust. We know it will be a benefit to the city, its citizens, and to all concerned. I am glad to see the interest shown."

Mayor Fathers called for further expression. It was forthcoming. Attorney Chas. E. Pierce arose and said he had been asked to tell what he knew in regard to the moral conditions as they now exist. Until recently he had had no intimate knowledge of the situation, he said. The District Attorney requested him, however, to assist him in prosecuting the Bergsterman murder case and out of the testimony which had developed at the hearing certain things had developed which cannot be questioned.

"It was proved there beyond the peradventure of a doubt," he said, "that these two defendants with another boy, no older than they, had stood at a bar for an hour between eight and nine o'clock on the night of the crime. They returned to the Knipp saloon at ten o'clock and the two defendants continued to buy beer. Each of the three spent something like $2 apiece."

Mr. Pierce continued to recount the story of the murder as it was brought out in the testimony at the hearing Thursday. How the boys met the old man who was intoxicated and of the subsequent criminal assault.

The officers on the witness stand testified to an investigation of the crime which would do credit to no diligent man, charged Pierce. They had not inspected the upper story of the house; they failed to take careful note of any marks of a struggle inside or outside of the house. Mr. Dunwiddie asked an officer to take the time Thursday to make an inspection which he did at that late day.

From the testimony taken, it was evident Mr. Pierce said, that this sort of law violation, gambling and the selling of liquor to minors, was not an exceptional occurrence, it was going on continually, night after night. "That sort of thing doesn't exist unless someone is to blame," he declared. "And I want to tell you that every bit of evidence which has been presented in the Bergsterman case has been secured by Mr. Dunwiddie, working alone going about from place to place, getting what the police ought to have had ready for him."

"It was the thought that this gathering have some specific presentation of the matter under discussion and I was asked to present a resolution which I have drawn as follows," Mr. Pierce then read the resolution which is given above. It was greeted with vigorous prolonged applause.

After the reading of the resolution Mayor Fathers arose and announced that it had not been the intention of the city councilmen to encourage non-enforcement of the state laws and city ordinances.

"The city can only judge from what has transpired in the past what will be done in the future, unless we take some definite action," said Mr. Pierce. "We do not accuse the city officials of corruptness. But they have not pursued these matters with sufficient industry. They have become too easy. The time has come to be aroused. I don't believe in a crusade but we must do something definite. Our laws are for the protection of the weak. You and I are strong; we don't need protection. But if the officers permit irregularities the council should know of it and act accordingly."

"Gentlemen, this opens an avenue to a line of work of which I strongly approve," announced the Mayor. "Here we have a backing to secure law enforcement and I want you to understand that neither I nor the council are in sympathy with vice or laxity of law enforcement."

Rev. John McKinney was on his feet to present his views. He said that the carelessness in law administration was a matter of common knowledge. It was reported daily in the newspapers. "I ask you, Mr. Mayor," he said, "whether you have taken any cognizance of it in an official way."

"We have had the matters under consideration," said Mr. Fathers, "and prosecutions have already been started."

"Did it require the occurrences of the past week to bring the conditions to your knowledge?"

"As far as I know the law has been enforced here during the past year."

"You have no definite way of finding out whether laws and ordinances are violated? No reports presented to you from the police department? Who has jurisdiction in these matters?"

"It is for the council to enforce the laws through the police department," said the Mayor.

"But an officer shouldn't wait until he is told of an infringement of the law," objected Rev. McKinney. "They might want to protect a friend. Haven't you any jurisdiction over them?"

"Of course you understand that they are appointed and subject to removal by the police commission," said the Mayor.

"I understand that, but don't they give you any reports in respect to the things which are going on?"

"I take it that things have been going very well. They have made no report."

with reference to moral conditions. "All they would have to do would be to keep their eyes open while traveling Center avenue, day or night," he said. "Things are in such a way that the persons at my school are afraid to go down town after dark alone. Two of the teachers were attacked on their way home on one occasion last summer but they preferred to keep the affair quiet."

Mr. Hooper went on to tell how students of the school had secured liquor on several occasions. When he first came to the school during commencement week a year ago, some of the students went down town and got liquor. On another occasion he had caught boys after they had had whiskey, but they were unable to locate the saloon which supplied them. He told how he identified the Finley time, how he had brought the matter to the attention of the authorities.

"If the city of Janesville can't do anything to protect our people at the blind school, the state of Wisconsin shall do it. We have got to have protection," was his closing statement. Some discussion followed in regard to the exact manner in which the Finley case was finally brought up. It brought up the fact that a number of prominent citizens had lent their influence demanding prosecution. City Attorney Dougherty had stated that he would take up the prosecution of any case the evidence at hand for which was in any ways conclusive providing he himself was convinced the parties were guilty. This was taken as a fair attitude.

Mr. Pierce again had a word to offer. "You have to bring a case to the police on a platter in order to get a prosecution," he charged. "We are paying a force of men $8,000 a year to look after these things and yet Mr. Hooper and Mr. Hayes have got to find things and bring the matter up. It is the duty of these officers to know what is going on." He referred to the reputation which former Marshal Hogan had of dropping in at the most unexpected intervals at various places where law violation was likely.

Councilman Milmore arose to the defense of the council. There was not a member of the city governing body that did not want to see the police force taken to task. Right now with these cases up we have our chance to do something. Now we'll get these people, he said. He also pointed out that of all the members of the council he was farthest removed from the affairs of the police department.

"There were other business men who were anxious for a hearing. George S. Parker wanted to know why an investigation and a prosecution was not started against the saloon-keeper in whose place girls were taken last summer."

The Mayor stated there was no ordinance against girls in saloons. Mr. Pierce interrupted to say that there was a state law prohibiting minors of either sex.

Mr. Parker made reference to the comparison of a factory superintendent with the city officials and the consequent responsibility. "It is a common report on the streets," he said, "that the Chief of Police has said that the Mayor had only to say the word and laws would be rigorously enforced. It seems to me that it is up to you to pull the strings."

Mayor Fathers declared he was willing to aid in any way in securing law enforcement. He pointed, however to the difficulty with which convictions have been secured in the past and of the consequent diffidence on the part of the authorities in starting suits.

Attorney George G. Sutherland had a word to say to this. Prosecution was what the citizens wanted. It makes no difference whether convictions are secured or not. If the jurors will not convict, the citizens want to find that out. But convictions cannot be secured until suits have been instituted. If there are any reasonable grounds to suppose that the laws have been violated it is the duty of the police officials to see that warrants are sworn out.

The matter of screens in the saloons house of ill fame and other matters came before the assemblage. "As little has been done as could be to satisfy the people, it seems," said Myron Green. He pointed to the case of Edgerton where the screens, tables and chairs and music boxes had been removed from the saloons and how the town which had a reputation for toughness, had been cleaned up. "Remove the screens in the saloons and you will not hear of the instance where one or two naked girls were dancing on the counter."

City Attorney Dougherty explained just what points the screen ordinance covers. It applied merely to closing hours and provided for an unobstructed view of the bar. Mr. Milmore stated that the ordinance was passed for the convenience of the police and the satisfaction of the measure to them was all that was thought required.

Sanford Soverhill asked the Mayor if he knew that there were in the city, not one but a dozen, houses of ill fame in operation. If several cases they were so close to saloons that liquor could be handed from one to the other. The Mayor said he did not know that such was the case.

"Then," said Mr. Soverhill, "there are fifty men here who will tell you that this is so and they will tell the same to any police officer only it isn't necessary. They know it."

P. S. Baines asked if there wasn't some ordinance to prevent the repeated selling of liquor to men who were on the black list. When told that there was he asked why it was not enforced and why it was that men came into municipal court for sentence on drunkenness charge week after week.

"With the backing of the best lawyers in the state, with all the ministers and some of the most prominent business men supporting you, Mr. Mayor," said former Mayor S. B. Hedges, "I know that things are going to be different in the future. I know from experience that there are always many to advise and few to assist, but the sentiment here expressed is most encouraging to you in the performance of your duty. It is the wish that the law be enforced and that is what we shall get. The Mayor has lacked public support which he now has and I look forward to a better and a cleaner Janesville."

"I am anxious to do what the people want," said Mayor Fathers. "It is not to be presumed that I should know of all of these things which it is said are going on. You people have reported to me in regard to them and I am indebted to you for it. I am greatly pleased to receive your assistance and support."

Dr. David Beaton, pastor of the Congregational church spoke to the point on the matter under discussion. "You Mr. Mayor can't carry out any reform or enforce any law, unless you have public sentiment with you," he said. "During the three years that I have been in Janesville public sentiment has not been in favor of a clean city. I think we are honest if we come to that conclusion. It is a generally accepted fact."

"Now, we men, are merely coming here tonight to tell you Mr. Mayor, and the Councilmen, that these things which have been prevailing for a long time, have got to stop, and that we are ready to stand by you in insisting that they shall be stopped."

"But the Mayor and the Council are supposed to know what has been going on in the city. That is what they are in office for and the Mayor can't say he doesn't know; it's his business to know. That's the plain common sense view of a common sense man. "It is time we had a cleaning up. The police are in disfavor in this town and I believe that they are not doing their duty. They are either incapable or corrupt. It is notorious that gambling is going on, that the saloon-keepers are violating the laws by selling to minors and in other ways that houses of ill fame exist, and it is absurd to go away supposing that these things are not known. They can't be disputed, the charge is a general one."

"It is not to answer any specific instance that we citizens are here tonight. We don't want to go after anyone, all that we ask is that the laws shall be enforced and we are responsible morally if not legally for the conditions that exist. I am glad that Mr. Pierce's resolution makes the charge a general one and that it reads the way it does."

"As I say it is for the Mayor and council to know what is being done in the city. They can keep track of the moral condition through their police department and if the police department as now organized cannot take care of these things it is up to the councilmen to see that they get police officers who will look after the moral welfare of the city and see that the laws are enforced."

"Let us resolve to stand behind these men in the performance of their duty and insist on better moral conditions in order that this city may be a fit place in which to raise our children."

Mr. Pierce's resolution was passed without a dissenting vote. Later a motion introduced by P. S. Baines was passed to the effect that a committee of fifteen with Judge Sale as chairman and the other members of the committee by him be appointed. When this had been done, the purpose of the meeting was at an end. There was nothing more to do and nothing more to say. It was moved that a vote of thanks be extended to the Mayor for his courtesy in presiding.

In addition to those who spoke last night there were others who could have spoken with equal feeling. The entire gathering was possessed with the one all engrossing idea and it is safe to say that there was never a more earnest gathering of Janesville citizens.

DR. BURRUS SHOWS UP MODEL HUSBAND

Gives Advice to The Young Thinking of Matrimony—is Illustrated Engaged young women, love-lorn lasses, or any who are contemplating entering into matrimony will do well to read the following article by Dr. A. P. Burrus of this city and Fort Atkinson, before taking the final step. Scrutinize the faces shown in the cuts which the doctor has furnished as typical of the standard man and the misser, and act on the doctor's advice.

If your beloved fiance comes up to the measure of the standard man lead him to the altar and do it quickly.

from you. But, on the other hand, if he be miserly, grasping, niggardly or penurious type, (see dictionary for other qualifications) cast him off like a worn-out garment, give him the mitten, hand him a "lemon," or dispose of him in other manner that suits your nature and disposition. Here is what the doctor has to say concerning the "standard" man and the misser that would make a desirable husband. "Many ladies have asked me to give dimensions of a standard man. The above picture was made by Fowler and Wells fifty years ago and appeared in the Ptenological Journal as an upright, active standard husband."

"The other picture shows a man whose legs are short from the knee down. Such belongs to the rickety families, have soft bones, bow knees and clump fingers. Teeth cut irregular, of poor quality and decay early. Such are frequently pigeon-breasted."

"These are very good reasons for rejecting one with short legs from the knee down, for a wife. "Editors have criticized me very extensively on this point, but they will do well to follow my example when they marry. The tape measure of the head and the yard stick has been severely criticized by many women, as well as by the weight. They wish to know if I expect to get a wife by weight and measure the way beef cattle are sold. They will please observe the top of the misser's head and see how difficult it is. It would fall short in measure about three inches from that of a standard man, about ten inches from the top of the occipital spine. He is too short at both ends. Would like him for a husband?"

"A. P. Burrus."

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dickinson went to Janesville this morning to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Harriet Horn which took place there this afternoon.

Miss Seleda Jensen left this morning for Freeport to remain over Sunday with friends.

William Hutson, who now resides in Joliet, Ill., with relatives came last night on a visit with relatives and friends.

MOTIF FOR FRONT OF SHIRT WAIST.

This makes a pretty motif for the front of a shirt waist. The leaves and figure are worked solid, with the dot as an eyelet, and the stems in the outline stitch. Use mercerized cotton No. 25.

DINNER STORIES

Bill Sprague kept a grocery shop in a little village in New Jersey. One day he set off for New York to buy a lot of goods. The goods were dispatched immediately, and as Bill had lingered in New York sightseeing they reached home before him.

The goods, in an enormous packing case, were driven to the shop by the local expressman. Mrs. Sprague came out to see what had arrived, and with a shriek tottered and nearly fell.

"Oh, what's the matter, ma'am?" cried a neighbor.

Mrs. Sprague, her eyes blinded with tears, pointed to the packing case, whereon was stenciled in large black letters:

"Bill inside."

Glancing hastily down the pages of Tommy Jones' examination papers the teacher's heart thrilled over Tommy's unexpectedly good showing, for not one of the questions remained unanswered. But upon subjecting the papers to a more careful personal perusal in Tommy's proficiency had a fall. After seven of the ten questions Tommy had written politely:

his wife's nephew was taken in the raid.

"Becker, after a few days, told me of having seen Commissioner Waldo and that the commission had heard of Rosenthal's charges and had not believed them."

"Becker said to me, 'That fellow Rosenthal is getting dangerous.'"

"I said, 'Nobody will believe Rosenthal.'"

"Well," he answered, "so long as Commissioner Waldo doesn't believe him, I guess there's nothing to worry about. He said that every day he was getting divergent reports from people about what Rosenthal was saying."

Told Not to Worry.

"I asked Becker if he had taken the policemen out of Rosenthal's place. He said 'no'."

"Well," I told him, "as long as that man stays there Rosenthal will talk."

"I don't care much what he says," Becker replied.

"Did you and Becker discuss newspaper interviews that Rosenthal had given?"

"Yes," Becker told me that I should not worry about that; that he had Jack Sullivan looking after the papers and that Rosenthal could not get anything printed. Later Becker told me a morning paper had gotten an affidavit from Rosenthal and was going to print it."

"I guess Rosenthal means to do what he said he would—to squeal and break me," Becker said.

"Becker told me he had asked if he had any answer to make to the affidavit. He said his lawyer had told him not to answer it, but he was going to try to get the original of the affidavit, as he understood if he did not get it he would have a good basis for a criminal libel suit against Rosenthal."

Night of Shooting.

Further testimony related to the night of the shooting. Rose told about gathering of the gun men at Becker's request. Rose said, "We all went up into Bridge's place and had drinks. Bridge said, 'Herman Rosenthal is at the Metropole.' Everybody got up then and went out—'Lefty,' 'Gip,' 'Whit,' 'Dago Frank,' and 'Bridge.' I stayed behind, waiting when word came that Rosenthal had been shot."

Rose said he went then to the Lafayette baths and telephoned Becker. "Did you hear the news?" I asked him. "Yes," Becker said, "I congratulate you."

"I am glad it's done," Becker said. "Becker said he was late in coming down," Rose added, "because he had stopped at the police station to see Rosenthal's body. If it wasn't for Rosenthal's body, I wouldn't be here."

Becker said he had been around and out his tongue out, Becker said to me.

"Don't worry Jack," Becker told me, "the only thing to do now is to lay low till it blows over."

A recess was then taken.

Make Becker Sweat.

Before Rose was half through with his story drops of perspiration were standing on the brow of the accused police lieutenant. He did not once take his eyes off the bald-headed little gambler as the latter calmly related his story. Mrs. Becker, who had a seat not far from her husband, looked steadily at the floor while Rose was talking. McIntyre volleyed objection after objection until he was reprimanded by Justice Goff.

Twice he demanded that court be adjourned on the ground that it was a legal holiday and each time the court cut his arguments short.

SEEK TO INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF DISEASES IN CABBAGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 12.—In an effort to inaugurate methods for the complete control of several cabbage diseases of which La Crosse county is the only one in the state which has experienced a serious outbreak, Professor L. R. Jones, plant pathologist of the University of Wisconsin, and his assistants have made three trips to La Crosse to study conditions. Two diseases, whose ravages have been the worst and which are entirely different in character, are the black leg or phoma and the black rot. A large acreage in several towns in the county is planted to cabbage which supplies the canning establishments here, and the loss of half a crop will be a serious one to the gardeners.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SNAPSHOTS BY BARBARA BOYD

The Superior People

SHE was little and black-eyed and black-haired, and she first attracted the attention of the crowd of tourists, waiting for coaches, by literally screaming out, in a high and angry voice, that her baggage was to go in the carriage with her and not in one of the large coaches.

And so, much to the discomfort of the other passengers in her carriage, suit-cases and bags were piled in.

"She certainly made a spectacle of herself," said some of the tourists, as her carriage drove off.

"I pity the husband of a woman like that," said another.

At the stop for lunch she further drew the amused attention of the tourists by dragging her husband into a corner of the general waiting room, and there berating him.

She seated herself with a flourish in a rocking chair and rocked violently, and tapped the floor with her foot, and shook her head to emphasize her remarks.

"Absolutely vile arrangements," she said to him, "to be jammed into these carriages like cattle."

"I shall report the matter," said her husband.

"I hope you will," she replied with a stamp of her foot and a nod of her head that almost dislocated her hair, "I just hope you will."

Then she fell to muttering, probably saying to herself all the complaints she was going to make.

"The idea of getting people up at such a beastly hour and then making them sit here and wait," she broke out again.

"A vile arrangement," agreed her husband. "I shall surely report it and I don't care whose scrap is lost."

Once more she fell to muttering.

"This place looks like a cattle-pen," she broke forth again in a few minutes, looking around the room. "But ordinary people don't mind it, and she glanced scornfully at the crowd of chattering and laughing tourists."

"Can't you possibly get a carriage to ourselves?"

"I've tried my very best," replied her husband, "but it is impossible. Again she stamped her foot and muttered, "Vile" and "Beastly."

"I just hope you will report such arrangements."

"I certainly shall. I shall let the management know how exceedingly uncomfortable we have been."

Just then luncheon was announced.

"I shan't be able to eat a thing so soon after breakfast, but I'll go look at it," she announced, as she made her way to the dining room.

Her amused fellow tourists noted, however, that she did not lag behind the others in eating, though she eyed everything scornfully and made caustic remarks about the food and service.

And when it was time to go on, she climbed angrily into her carriage, protested vehemently at having to travel like cattle with the common herd, announced loudly she was going to report the whole beastly business, and, as the driver gathered up his reins and the carriage swung into line behind the others, she was still heard bitterly complaining at not having an exclusive conveyance of her own.

And the rest of the tourists probably joined with her in regretting the fact, not for her sake, but for their own.

For it is very trying to all concerned to travel with superior people.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THE dawn is deepening into day—there is a race to run before the sunbeams of night drive off the beams of sun.

Where is the goal we mean to reach; what conquest would we make; what is the spelling of the course our earnest feet shall take?

DAINTY DATE DISHES.

Dates are such wholesome fruit and comparatively cheap enough to serve in some form very frequently. The following are a few of the many ways that dates may be served:

Fruit Cheese.—Chop six dates, three figs, a half cup of blanched almonds; mix with a cup of cream cheese, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a seasoning of salt. Make in balls and serve garnished with half of an almond on each ball. This may be served with mayonnaise if placed on lettuce, making a very acceptable salad.

Date Torte.—Beat the whites of three eggs very stiff, add the beaten yolks, add a cup of sugar. Mix a cup of bread crumbs with a cup of chopped dates, add a half cup of chopped nuts and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake slowly in a moderate oven, and serve with whipped cream.

Date Souffle.—Stone and crush a pound of dates to a paste. Beat the whites of four eggs very stiff, add gradually a half cup of sugar, then stir in the dates. Bake in a buttered baking dish and bake until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

Date Fritters.—Sift one and a half cups of flour with one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add two-thirds of a cup of milk, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, and a beaten egg; mix well and add a cup of halved dates. Fry by teaspoonfuls in hot fat. Roll in powdered sugar and serve.

Date Fudge.—Cook together two cups of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, half a cup of milk, two squares of chocolate. When tested, as usual, add a half cup of dates and a teaspoonful of vanilla.

Nellie Maxwell.

Fruit Salad.

This can be made of almost any fruits, such as apples, peaches, and sliced oranges broken up into sections, and, if fresh fruit is unavailable, use tinned apricots, peaches or pineapple. Stone and cut up the fruit used with a silver knife, and let it all soak for an hour or so in syrup flavored with liquor. Serve in a china or glass bowl with whipped cream.

CHARMING FROCK OF CURRANT-RED SATIN

Here is a charming frock of currant-red satin. Heavy, extra cord etc. sections and cuffs; the forearm panel portions of the sleeves and the tucker are of draped chiffon to match the material. Belt of purple satin finished by a guaze rose with green velvet leaves. The skirt is draped up in a puffed tunic, which runs downward towards the back.

Dog That Writes and Draws.

A clever dog made his bow at the Hippodrome, London, England, the other afternoon. "Dick" can draw a donkey's head, make three geometrical figures, and write his signature. He can write equally well with both paws, either separately or in combination; while as an arithmetician he indulges in simple addition, multiplication, division and subtraction with ready accuracy.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TO BLAME OR NOT TO BLAME.

AN interesting question regarding the ethics of responsibility has been put to me by one of my letter friends, and because it is not only an interesting question, but also one which is continually being raised in some form, I am going to offer my little solution of it in this column.

This is my letter friend's story. A friend of her's had a dearly loved cousin visiting her. The cousin had planned to return home on a certain day. Her hostess was so loath to have her go that she urged her to stay another day. The cousin at first protested vigorously, but finally yielded rather against her better judgment, and put off her return until the next day. On that day there was a terrible train wreck and the girl was killed in it.

"And now my friend is almost insane with grief," writes my correspondent. "And it isn't only that, but she is tortured by remorse. She says she was to blame for her cousin's death because if she had only let her go when she wanted to, she would have reached home safely. I tell her that is all nonsense but she won't listen to me. She is making herself sick over it. What do you think?"

What do I think? Well, I most heartily agree with my correspondent that her friend's attitude is all nonsense. Of course it is inevitable that she should feel regret, but I don't think it is a case for remorse at all. "Blame" and "fault" are very difficult words to deal with. Only the All Wise can see and understand sufficiently about our motives and our temptations, our intentions and our mistakes, to be sure of using these words aright. But this is the way it seems to me. One is not to blame for the chain of events which follows some act except insofar as one is to blame because the act itself was wrong.

I do not think that one can claim credit for all the events that follow one's act except insofar as the act itself was creditable, and so I think the converse holds true. For instance, if this woman had persuaded her cousin to stay another day and the railroad wreck had occurred on the day on which she had intended to go home, I do not think the woman would have deserved credit for saving her cousin's life. Conversely she does not have reason to accuse herself of being to blame for the girl's death.

In this case there was neither praise nor blame attaching to the act itself. But suppose that the woman had for purely selfish reasons unfairly tricked her cousin into staying and the girl had been killed. Then I think the woman would have been to blame for her deceit and selfishness, not for the tragedy. And suppose on the other hand she had made some special sacrifice or effort to make it possible for her guest to stay and the accident had been avoided, then I think she would have deserved credit for the sacrifice and effort but not for saving the girl's life.

If we were to blame or credit ourselves with all the long series of events which often follow our simplest act, we would certainly have a hard time keeping score.

We must inevitably feel regret when something unfortunate happens which would not have happened if we had acted differently, but if our act was not intrinsically wrong I do not think we ever need feel remorse.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson. Is it proper at a wedding for the bride and groom and family to sit down to the table and let the guests wait?

Hardly.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am married but in love with another and can't make my husband happy, for I am not happy with him. Is it right to live with him?—UNHAPPY.

Most of this "love" is nothing but imagination.

A self-respecting woman will not allow herself to love any other man as long as she has a husband. Send the other man about his business and make up your mind to be an honest wife. Think most of your husband and less of yourself. You were probably glad enough to get him when he married you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) I have dark circles under my eyes. How can I remove them? (2) I cannot see anything plainly. How can I cure this without glasses, as they are uncomfortable to me?—ED. F.

(1) You are probably not well. Better see a doctor. (2) Have your eyes fitted with good glasses if you don't want to become blind. You will get accustomed to the feel of them in time.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Four years ago I made the acquaintance of a young lady then fifteen years old. Two years later I wrote her telling her I loved her. She did not answer but when I met her she told me she did not believe what I wrote but would not tell why. Later on she stopped speaking to me. Should I speak to her first? My love for her is dead now.

If your love is dead, what's the use bothering about her any more? Just forget her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When I came home I found my roommate sitting on the dark stairs with a girl. He said it was proper. Is it? (2) He goes to school in the forenoon, sleeps in the afternoon and goes to see a girl every night. Wouldn't it be better to call on the girl less and study more? (3) Is it proper to go to see a lady clerk at a store and talk to her for an hour or so? (4) When a young man takes a girl to a show at night, should they take a chaperone? (5) My friend gave a young lady his picture then wanted it back. He called on her to ask for the picture and took a box of candy with him. Was that the best method? (6) If a young man has been keeping company with a young lady for some weeks and she goes on a vacation and does not write to him at all, should he call on her when she returns?—STUDENT

(1) Not strictly. (2) It depends on the girl. It wouldn't hurt him to give more time to study. (3) No. It might get her discharged. (4) Not necessarily, if they are both sensible people. (5) That's what I call diplomacy. (6) Why not? They are not engaged and he had no particular right to expect her to use her vacation writing to him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I intend to have a linen shower on one of my girl friends who is to be married.

Fortunes in Faces.

There's often much truth in the saying "her face is her fortune," but it's never said where pimples, skin eruptions, blotches, or other blemishes disfigure it. Impure blood is back of them all, and shows the need of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They promote health and beauty. Try them. 25c at People's Drug Co.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

mind and body rightly to perform his duties as the family breadwinner. There is really no excuse for most family troubles. They are brought about by discontent, bad tempers, mismanagement, selfishness, unwillingness to bear and forbear.

Much of the home peace lies within the hands of the wife. If she will not do her share to preserve the peace and comfort of her home—even a little more than her share—if need be—she is failing in her duty as a helpmate, and she cannot censure an employer who refuses to retain the man whose efficiency has been lowered by her own failure to send him away from home each time refreshed and comforted and ready for the fray.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT.

Here is something that every woman ought to read and ponder:

The general superintendent of a certain railway company has issued an order that hereafter domestic troubles will be considered sufficient cause for an employee's discharge from the railroad's service.

"Undoubtedly," said the general superintendent, "domestic troubles account for a number of accidents. A man whose home surroundings are not pleasant often cannot get the proper amount of sleep while on duty. Sometimes words which may have passed between him and his wife linger in his mind after he has taken up the work of the day. Loss of sleep and worry of the latter sort are bound to exercise distracting influences."

Every man's success in the outside world depends greatly upon his home environment. That is where a wife is so important a partner in the matrimonial firm. The woman who scolds and nags and suspicions, and who sends her husband away weary and worried each morning, has herself to blame if he is a failure in his work.

This is not the first railroad company that has decided to discharge employees because of domestic troubles. One of the greatest railroad systems in the country has had this unwritten rule for years.

At first thought it seems a heartless rule. There are domestic troubles that can't be helped; it will be argued. But consider, for instance, the responsibility of the engineer of a passenger train. If his mind is occupied unhappily, it is not in fit condition to be on the alert every moment, as it must be to safeguard the human freight he carries. A conductor who is worrying over troubles at home isn't in fit condition to grasp the contents of orders to transmit to his engine.

A man who must listen to complaints and certain lectures, who is hurried by a fretting wife and unruly children during his time at home, hasn't had enough rest of heart and

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

GREAT TENOR FAVORS NON-FLESH DIET FOR SINGERS.

That a diet without flesh is best for singers is the opinion of Heinrich Knote of Berlin, the greatest of Wagnerian tenors, who will soon open a conservatory in Berlin in which students will be furnished a diet that will conduce to the best development of the voice. Many opera singers, he says, feel compelled to resort to stimulants, but he himself finds it no longer necessary to use stimulants or meat. He attributes his superb health, endurance and capacity for sustaining the most trying Wagner roles to his simple diet. He says he has converted many to this by his example. The surplus energy consumed in digesting and eliminating a complex, incompatible meal, cannot be used for work or for cure. Improvement in diet necessarily increases capacity for work and health.

ANNOUNCE BEBATING LEAGUE QUESTIONS

Lists of Subjects Submitted to Schools Included in Beloit College Debating League.

Questions for discussion among the high schools in Wisconsin and Illinois, and members of the Beloit College Debating League, have been issued. Each year the College from the Line City send out at least three questions for debate, and this year the topics have their choice of questions, but not of sides. Prof. Buell has issued the questions as he received them and they are as follows:

Resolved:—That provision for a minimum wage for women engaged in manufacturing and business establishments is desirable.

2. That in the interests of the world the United States begin to diminish war expenditures.

3. That provision for the recall of Judicial Decisions in American State Government is desirable.

Work will be started at once in preparation for a hard year's work and many have reported their intention of appearing in the preliminary tryout. Stanley Judd is the only old member of last year's teams and it will be difficult to pick the teams with practically all new men.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, October 12, 1872.—Hon. C. G. Williams will address the republicans of Janesville at Lapping Hall, on Tuesday evening next. The simple announcement that he is going to speak is sufficient. The people of Janesville know Mr. Williams know him to be an honest, earnest, true hearted republican, a man of unusual ability and an eloquent speaker. They know also that he is the most popular man before the people of any portion of Wisconsin as a candidate for congressional honors. Knowing all this they will fill the hall on Tuesday evening to listen to his speech. The Janesville campaign Glee Club will be in attendance, which insures good music for the occasion.

A trotting race has been arranged for to take place at the Driving park on the 26th inst. for a purse of some thing like two hundred dollars. The following entries have been made: L. Dearborn of this city, Forty-Five; G. A. Proctor, of La Prairie, Slippery

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

My barns are full of succotash that grew on every knoll and tor; and I'm prepping now to thrash my spinnach and excelsior. All summer long I tilled the soil, though grievous was the heat, I sowed the seeds rewarded all my toil, and I am fixed for winter now. Behind my lope-earned buckskin mare I plowed the corn rows, day by day, and gave but little thought or care, to things a thousand miles away. The roaring politicians made no impress on my sordid mind; with hoe and rake, and scythe and spade, I stuck to my demitition grind. I heard a nót-binder's wheeze, the party's pledge or statesman's vow; I deftly pruned my lumnip trees, and I am fixed for winter now. My neighbors often went to town to hear the truth that makes men free by politicians handed down, and I was busy as a bee. I swung the ax, I plied the saw, I herded hens and milked the cow; I raised the bumper crop of slaw, and I am fixed for winter now. My barns are full of cockleburrs, the product of my fertile lands; my cheerful wife is wearing furs, the girls have diamonds on their hands. The man who fooled with Vital Things now goes around with moody brow; to him the winter trouble brings, but I am fixed for winter now.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Moral—Never look for a Gas-leak with a lighted match while in Quarantine.

A GREAT RECORD.

Hard to Duplicate It in Janesville. Scores of representative citizens of Janesville are testifying for Doan's Kidney Pills. Such a record of local endorsement is unequalled in modern times. This public statement made by a citizen is but one of the many that have preceded it and the hundreds that will follow. Read it:

Mrs. Emilie Hell, 542 Franklin St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I suffered terribly from pain through the small of my back and limbs and I also had trouble from the kidney secretions. Someone finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so, procuring them at the People's Drug Co. The contents of two or three boxes corrected my trouble. I hope that the publication of my statement will induce other kidney sufferers to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

(Statement given in August, 1908.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT.

Mrs. Hell was interviewed on September 23, 1910 and she said: "You may continue to publish my former statement regarding Doan's Kidney Pills. Since I used them two years ago, I have had no further need of a kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 60 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The Chronicles of Addington Peace

"I don't understand you."
"One of your household was listening at the window."

"Do you mean to tell me that I am spied upon by my own people?" cried Coran, angrily. "What gave you such an idea?"

"The dog there."
"Absurd!"

"Not at all, Mr. Coran. From where he lay he could look under the lower edge of the blind, which was not drawn completely down. He raised his ears; some one approached; he wagged his tail; it was a friend with whom he was well acquainted. If it had been a stranger he would have run barking to the window. It is simple enough, surely."

"Did you see who it was?" asked our host with a sudden change of manner.
"No," said the little man. "But I think this conversation unwise. Shall we join the ladies in the drawing room?"

Peace was in his most entertaining mood that night. Poor Emily, who was sitting by the French windows, staring sadly into the gathering shadows, was led to the piano, where she recalled her forbidden lover in sentimental ditties. He engaged Miss Rebecca in an argument on the local control of licensed premises, which gave that worthy old lady an opportunity for genuine oratory. Even our melancholy host was drawn out of his miseries by a reference to the water supply.

When ten o'clock came, and the ladies were led away under Miss Rebecca's wing—they keep early hours in Brendon—I shook the inspector by the hand in sincere admiration. It had been a really smart performance, and I told him so.

"The little man did not respond. Instead, he drew us together in a corner and issued his orders with sharp precision."

"Mr. Coran, at fifteen minutes to eleven you will leave the house by the drawing room windows and place the envelope you have prepared in the locker of the summer house. When you return do not fasten the catch, for I may wish to enter during the night. Walk upstairs to your bed and get to sleep if you can. Mr. Phillips, you will go to your room and stay there. The window overlooks the garden. If you want to keep watch—for I do not suppose you can resist that temptation—see that your head is well out, or sight. When Mr. Coran leaves the house, listen at your door. If you hear anyone moving, go and find out who it may be. You understand?"

"Yes," I answered. "But what are you going to do?"

"Discover a suitable place from which I can keep an eye on the summer house. Good-night to you."

When I reached my room, I took off my coat, placed a chair some six feet back from the open window, so that the rising moon should not show my face to any watchers in the laurels, and so waited events.

It was a soft summer night, such as only temperate England knows. There was not a breath of wind; a perfume of flowers crept in from the garden; every leaf stood black and still in the silvery light. I heard the clock chime three-quarters of an hour in some room beneath me. The last stroke had barely shivered into silence when I saw Coran appear upon the lawn, walking towards the summer house, the outlines of which I could distinguish amongst the heavier shadows of the trees by which it was surrounded. I remembered my orders, and crept softly to the door, which I had left ajar. The minutes slipped by without a sound, and presently I began to wonder why Coran had not returned. His room was not far from mine. I must have heard his foot upon the stairs. He had disobeyed his orders, that was evident. However, it was not my affair, and I crept back to my point of observation.

Twelve! I heard the clock tap out the news from the room below. I was nodding in my chair, barely awake. After all, it was a trivial matter; this trumpery blackmail. Half an hour more, thought I, pulling out my watch, and I will get to bed.

The affair was becoming extremely monotonous. I dared not light a cigarette, for I felt certain that Peace would notice the glow from outside, and that I should hear of it in the morning. Ten minutes, a quarter of an hour—what was that moving under the trees by the edge of the drive? It was a man—two men. I crouched forward with every nerve in me suddenly awakened.

They were a good thirty yards apart, the one following the other with stealthy strides—not the sort of walk with which honest men go about honest business.

When the leader came to the path which led towards the summer house he turned down it, leaving the drive to his right. He avoided the gravel, keeping to the silent turf which fringed it. His companion followed him step by step.

It was a curious spectacle, these slow-moving shadows that drifted forward through the night, now almost obscured beneath the branches, now showing in black silhouette against a patch of moonlight.

As the first man melted amongst the trees about the summer house, the other moved forward, swiftly for a score of steps and then halted for a moment, crouching behind a clump of laurel. Suddenly he sprang up again and ran straight forward, cutting a corner across the lower edge of the lawn.

There was no shouting, but I could hear the faint tramping of a scuffle and the thud of falling bodies. Then all was still again.

Peace had told me to remain in the house. But Peace had never expected two men; I was sure of that. I crept down the stairs, out through the French windows of the drawing room, and so across the lawn to the trees about the summer house.

As I passed through them I saw a little group standing in whispered conversation. They turned sharply upon me. One was a stranger, but his companions were Peace and, to my vast surprise, old Coran himself.

"Well, Mr. Phillips," said the detective, "what do you want?"

"I thought," I began.

"Oh, you've been thinking, too, have you?" he snapped. "Here's a young man who was thinking he would like to look at this extremely commonplace summer house; here is Mr. Coran who was thinking he might help me, by lurking about his garden instead of going to bed; and here are you with heaven knows what ideas in your head. Perhaps you and Mr. Coran will do what you are told another time."

"I saw two men," I explained humbly. "I was afraid they might get the better of you. How was I to know that it was Mr. Coran who had disobeyed orders?"

"You are both pleased to be humorous," said our host, and I could see he was trembling with rage. "But the fact remains that I caught this young man, entering the summer house for a purpose we can well imagine. Inspector Addington Peace, I charge this person, Thomas Appleton, with blackmail."

"Can you explain your presence, Mr. Appleton?" asked the detective, kindly.

He did not look a criminal, for he stood very straight and square, regarding the three of us with an amused smile.

"Of course, I had no right to be here," he said. "Though why I should find a detective waiting to arrest me for blackmail, or why Mr. Coran should spring upon my back and roll me over, I cannot imagine."

"This is much as I expected," snarled his accuser. "Erontery and impudence are ever the associates of crime. Inspector, you will oblige me by producing the handcuffs."

"I should like a word in private, Mr. Coran."

They walked off together, leaving me alone with Mr. Thomas Appleton, who offered a cigarette.

"Has there been an epidemic of lunacy in the neighborhood?" he inquired politely.

"No," I said, laughing in spite of myself. "But how, in heaven's name, do you explain your visit to the summer house at this hour of the night?"

"I am afraid I must decline to answer you," he said, and quietly turned the subject.

Coran returned, with a face of vindictive indecision. Under his veil of austerity there had smouldered a dangerous temper, which was close upon bursting into flame. But, after all, he had excuse enough. Heaven alone knew what bawled ambition, what treacherous insults he had come to associate with this young man. The same passions actuate humanity, whether they view the world from one end of the telescope or the other.

"I have decided to waive your arrest for the present," he growled. "It would certainly create a great scandal in Brendon," said Appleton, firmly.

"You count on that, do you?" cried the elder man. "You think you have a hold upon me, that I am afraid of you. Take care, sir, take care."

"You choose to be mysterious, Mr. Coran. I have no hold on you. But I should think twice if I were you before arresting an innocent man."

"Innocent! What were you doing here?"

"That is my business."

Coran turned away, wringing his hands together in his odd manner when greatly excited.

"Go," he snarled over his shoulder. "Go, before I strangle you."

As I dropped off to sleep half an hour later I was still wondering why Peace had refused a bed, remaining for the night in the garden. Could he expect more visits to the summer house? Why had young Appleton come sneaking up at so late an hour if he were not guilty? The problem that had seemed so simple was changed into a maze of strange complications. I was too sleepy to trace them further.

I was awakened by a touch on my shoulder. It was Coran who stood by my bedside.

"We breakfast in half an hour," he said uneasily.

"I will be punctual."

"Forgive my importunity, Mr. Phillips," but promise me that you will be careful before Miss Rebecca. She is so very acute. I never knew a woman with a keener instinct for scandal. And, as a father, I cannot forget the future of my poor girls. If she knew the truth she would not leave them a penny; also, her heart is affected."

"I am sorry to hear it."

"Thank you. It is very necessary that you should be discreet."

He stalked out of the room and left me wondering at him with an amused cynicism.

I started for London with my host by the 9.05. To avoid suspicion, Peace accompanied us to the station; but there he left us. He had, he said, work to do in the town.

Coran was cheerful with the limited cheerfulness that nature allowed him. Doubtless he felt that he had his enemy in his power. He was very talkative concerning the final address which he was advertised to deliver that evening at eight o'clock. It was to be the completion, the coping-stone to his campaign, and was calculated to ensure his election next day. I expressed regret that I should not be privileged to hear it.

I lunched at my club, and, shortly after three, returned to my rooms. There, in my easiest chair, reading an evening paper, who should I discover but Inspector Peace.

"Hello," I said. "I didn't expect you back so soon."

"This is a very comfortable chair of yours, Mr. Phillips," he smiled. "I was glad of a rest."

"And how goes Brendon?"

"So well that I am going to take you down there by the 4.10 train."

I tried to draw his discoveries out of him, but he would tell me nothing. Something was going to happen which might interest me if I came along—that was the beginning and end of his news. It was sufficient to make me promise to join him, however, as he very well knew.

The local was just steaming into the station when a fat, red-faced man came panting out of the booking-office. Peace gave my arm a squeeze as he passed.

"That is Horledge, the chief supporter of Coran's opponent in tomorrow's election," he whispered.

"So you have been making some new friends since I saw you last?"

"One or two," he said, stepping into a carriage.

When we arrived at Brendon, the inspector led me off to an inn in the center of the town. It was a pleasant, old-fashioned place, with black rafters peering through the plaster of the ceiling and oak panelling high on the walls. The modern Brendon had wrapped it about, but it had not changed for three centuries. You may find many such ancient inns about London, which watch the march of the red brick suburbs with a dignified surprise, until one day the builder steps in, and the old coach and horses or white hart comes tumbling down, and a cheap chop and tea house reigns in its stead. We dined early. At half-past seven, by the grandfather's clock in the corner, Peace rose.

"Mr. Coran's meeting does not begin until eight; but I want to be there early—come along."

The platform was empty when we arrived, but a score of people were already on the front benches. We did not join them, seating ourselves near the door. Brendon, or the graver part of it, moved by us in a tiny stream. A few elders walked up to the platform with the air of those who realize that they are something in the world. The clock above them was pointing to the hour when, with a clumping of feet and a clapping of hands, Coran appeared, and shook hands with the white-whiskered old chairman.

It was while the chairman was introducing "the popular and venerated townsman who had come to address them," that the red face of Mr. Horledge came peering in at the door. He stood there for a minute, and then modestly sat down on the bench before us. Peace touched my arm, and we moved along until we were just behind him.

The chairman ended at last, and amid fresh applause, Coran rose and stood gazing down at the little crowd with a benevolent satisfaction. Their respect and admiration was the breath of life to the man. You could see it in his eyes, in his gesture as he begged for silence.

"My friends,"

He had got no farther when Horledge sprang to his feet with a raised hand.

Some Details of Great Show Men's Lives. BY D. W. WATT

There is no more interesting reading than to hear of men who started as poor boys and became rich men before they died. Not only rich men but men whose employes loved them and honor their money.

During Mr. Watt's last service with the White Tops he came in contact with some of the top notches in the circus business. Drilling in the school of Adam Forepaugh, he met Barnum, Bailey, Cole and Hutchinson, the quartette of the big show men who owned and controlled the great rival of the Forepaugh circus.

Mr. Watt this week tells a bit of inside history of these men, lines that teach their own lesson. Showmen from boyhood they died wealthy or are enjoying a ripe old age in prosperity. It is a little lesson in itself aside from being mighty interesting reading.

Thinking that it might be interesting to the average reader to know something about the history or in other words the start and the finish of some of the people who became famous in circus business, I will try to give you something along that line.

In the early seventies a middle aged woman by the name of Cole got together a small show in a small town in Iowa, and started it out as a wage on show under the name of W. W. Cole.

"Mother, Cole" as she was familiarly known around the show was a widow and W. W. Cole, whose name the show bore was her only child and at that time barely out of his teens and fresh from school.

The show was started in a small way, but under "Mother's Cole's" management it constantly grew both in size and popularity with the public. W. W. Cole, the son was not long in the business before he became an able assistant to his mother.

The show constantly grew and not many years later it had grown too large for a road show, and cars were bought and it was launched out as a road show. And it was not many years later before the W. W. Cole show was a dangerous rival of the great Adam Forepaugh and the P. T. Barnum shows, but in the earlier days of the show the Coles were smart enough to know that there was plenty of country and consequently kept away from the two great shows, and every year wound up with a good big balance to the good.

A few years later when it was known by the Barnum people that the Cole show was getting to be a dangerous rival they called Mr. Cole to New York to make a deal to take over the Cole show and W. W. Cole to take an interest in the Barnum show. Mr. Cole immediately became one of the active managers and directors of the great Barnum show and today is living at 13 West 27th street, New York City, and is probably the wealthiest of all the great show men of the early days.

W. W. Cole early in his career of show business as soon as he could get a good bank account would invest his money in business property in New York City. I knew of some investments he had made there more than thirty years ago.

Only a few days ago in looking over some old papers I ran across a letter which he wrote me in '98. The following is the letter:

13 West 27th st.,
Barnum & Bailey,
New York, Feb. 10 '98

D. W. Watt, Esq.,
Dear Sir:—

Your letter received after I wired you. Your telegram received. The position referred to would be as representing of Bailey and Cole with the "Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. Show." Mr. Bailey called on me stating that we should have a man there next season in place of George Starr, who was there only part of last season and recommended you for the position.

Mr. T. L. Evans was there as book-keeper and auditor and is to be there next season. He is at Columbus now and is engaged by the year. You would be there by the season commencing the latter part of April at Columbus, Ohio. The details of your duties I am unable to state. Mr. Bailey will give us particulars in time, knowing as he does just what they would be. Give me your views as to salary if you are inclined to accept and I will cable Mr. Bailey to advise you quickly.

Yours truly,
W. W. Cole

But of this nothing came and I never went back into the business. James A. Bailey and W. W. Cole, who were associated together for so many years in the business were two of the cleanest men that I ever knew. Every promise that they made either to the public, to the performers or to the working man was always fulfilled to the letter. That last time that the Barnum show was here, which I think was four years ago, under the management of James A. Bailey, I had a long talk with him and in the conversation I said, "Mr. Bailey, why don't you get out of the business?" "Well," he said, "it would look as though it was time. I'll be 70 years old my next birthday and I started in the business before I was of age, so I have been in the business for more than 50 years."

"But," he said, "Dave, I could not be satisfied away from the show. It's grown to be part of my life and there are many reasons why I should not quit. In the first place I have been busy so long that I could not bear

ACTRESS PLAYING LEADING ROLE IN BIG COMEDY HOPES HISTORY WILL REPEAT

Lottie Kendall.

Will history repeat? For ten years the musical comedy, "The Prince of Pilsen," has been going out on the road with an almost unknown actress in the leading role of "Mrs. Crocker, the City Widow" and coming back with this unknown actress a star of the first water. Grace Cameron was little known until she became Mrs. Crocker; neither were Louise Williams, Trivia Criganza and Folly Graham. But the "Prince of Pilsen" made them. This year Lottie Kendall, regarded as the "most beautiful woman who ever played the part" will start in the leading role. Outside New York she is little known. Will history repeat?

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

MAKE BIG SAVING UNDER COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

Mayor Mulva of Oshkosh Claims Over $25,000 Has Been Saved City Under New Regime.

Savings for the year totalling $26,947.85 have been made under the commission government in Oshkosh according to Mayor John Mulva. Substantial savings have been made in the expenditures of all but one of the departments, the exception being the salary fund. This is easily explained by the fact that the mayor and his associates on the council under the commission law are paid in the aggregate considerably more than were the mayor and aldermen under the former system of municipal government.

A comparison of the amount of money disbursed out of the various funds for the year ending September 30, 1911, and the year ending September 30, 1912, will show what has been accomplished," said the mayor. "The amount of money disbursed out of the fire fund for the year ending September 30, 1911, was $36,721.51; for the year ending September 30, 1912, $34,587.16 a saving of $2,134.35. Expenditures from other funds were: Police department fund 1911, $20,801.39; 1912, $19,531.02, a saving of $1,270.37. Bridge department fund, 1911, $5,332.17; 1912, $5,021.78, a saving of $310.39. General purpose fund, 1911, $117,558.75; 1912, $113,978.75, a saving of $3,580.00. Salary fund, 1911, $44,777; 1912, $46,793.27, or $2,016.27 more than 1911. At the close of the fiscal year 1911 the outstanding orders against the city amounted to $18,463.61. At the close of the fiscal year 1912 they amounted to only $4,219.90."

ANTIGO TO RAISE $79,568 FOR MUNICIPAL EXPENSES

It will take $92,568 to run the city of Antigo during the year 1913 according to the figures recently compiled by Mayor Hill and the Finance committee. Of this amount $13,000 will be raised from the saloon license leaving a total of $79,568 to go into the city tax budget.

The 1913 budget is only an increase of about $4,000 over the 1912 budget, which amount may be accounted for in the $10,000 additional raised for miscellaneous purposes.

The tax rate will not be determined until it is known just what the state tax will be. This can hardly be more than it was last year and in all probability will be less. Figures for the same year the city paid the same tax rate as the city of 2.45, an increase of only one mill. The assessment of both personal property and real estate in the city this year is $4,288,806.

Next year will be a record year in improvements in the city of Antigo, plans being now formulated for the paving of Superior street and east and west Fifth avenue. These improvements will, however, be financed by a bond issue, which will be retired by a sinking fund.—Antigo Journal.

BELOIT NOW PROVIDED WITH CITY LABORATORY

(Beloit Free Press.)

Thanks to the untiring efforts of the health department and especially Health Officer H. E. Burger, the city is to have a municipal laboratory, something that very few cities the size of Beloit can boast of. The department has worked for the laboratory for many months and was assisted materially in its efforts by the college authorities who generously offered the department the use of a room in Science hall which was accepted.

The laboratory will be tried out for six months, in which the department will have access to the room at Science hall and also be free to use the fine apparatus there, as the laboratory is equipped with the best apparatus to be found in a small college.

The municipal laboratories have worked out successfully in all cities where they have been tried out and in La Crosse last winter a big diphtheria epidemic was checked in the city because the health authorities of the city had the equipment necessary to trace down the source of the epidemic before it became prevalent. At the laboratory a diagnosis of all contagious diseases can be taken and also a test made of anything that can cause a contagious such as water or milk.

If the laboratory works out well it is the plan of the department to establish a permanent laboratory in the city and have a competent man in charge who will devote his whole attention to the duties connected with it.

GREEN BAY SEALER FILES REPORT ON WORK

John Kellher, the city sealer of weights and measures, has tested a total of 2,647 scales and measures since entering upon the duties of that office. He has prepared a report that has been filed with the city clerk giving some details of the testing work.

During the last few months he has sealed 1,886 scales and measures, he has adjusted 237 scales, he has condemned for repairs 341 scales and he has condemned, outright 422 scales and measures.

The sealer is of the opinion that the dealers are adhering to the provisions of the weights and measures law generally throughout the city. He believes, however, that apples and other fruit are not being sold according to the law. The law provides the fruit should be sold by weight.—Green Bay Gazette.

AUTOMOBILE FIRE STEAMERS TO BE TESTED IN RACINE

(Racine Times, Oct. 9.)

Mayor W. S. Goodland received information today to the effect that an automobile fire steamer had been loaded aboard cars by the Votz Fire Engine company and would arrive here some time tonight or tomorrow. The engine was sent here in order that a demonstration of its ability to pump water and travel over city roads might be demonstrated. It will be in charge of a competent man.

Word was also received here today that the Ahrens-Fix Fire Engine Co., who manufacture the Continental machine, would send a pumping engine here within a week to demonstrate its special qualities. The city officials intend to put the pumping engine through a hard test, come of the features proposed being a run along North Michigan street, which is exceedingly sandy and hard to travel. The pumping ability of the auto fire steamers will most likely be determined by a test at Fourth street bridge, the water most likely being secured from the river or from a hydrant.

MADISON'S MUNICIPAL ZOO HAS SUBSTANTIAL GROWTH

Starting a year ago last May with a herd of twelve deer donated by T. C. Richmond, Madison's public zoo at Vilas park has gradually increased until it contains one of the largest collections of animals outside of Washington Park Zoo at Milwaukee. Among the more recent donations are four raccoons, a pair of peccaries, or Mexican wild hogs, a pair of badgers, and a red fox. A large black bear has been promised. Other animals in the zoo are an American eagle, white rats, woodchucks, Guinea pigs, northern pine squirrel, belgian hare, crow, and ducks.

APPLETON COUNCIL INSPECTS GAS PRODUCER POWER PLANT

Mayor Canavan, Commissioners Goodland and Schueller and City Engineer Vinal left this morning for Green Bay, the primary purpose of the trip being to inspect the gas producer plant at the Hoberg Paper company mill. It has been suggested that a power equipment of that kind would be both economical and efficient for the new pumping station here. The gas producers plant has been in operation at the Hoberg mill for some time and is said to be giving perfect satisfaction from every point of view.—Appleton Post.

GARDEN CITY CHILDREN TALLER THAN AVERAGE

Statistics show that the average child of seven years brought up in the English garden cities is three inches taller than the average child of the same age living in a densely populated city. At the age of 14 the difference was still more marked. A garden city youth on this age averaged 5 inches more in height and thirty pounds more in weight than one of the same age from the big cities. In some of the crowded manufacturing towns of England, the death rate is forty for every thousand inhabitants, while in garden cities the rate has been reduced to between eight and nine a thousand.

(Racine Times.) That another playground park be created on the land on the north bank of Cedar Bend, known as Riverside drive was the recommendation of Jens Jensen (Chicago landscape artist, who came to Racine to look over the local park system.

IMPORTANT STREET WORK FINISHED AT LANCASTER

The job of macadamizing the streets on the east and north sides of the court house square is now completed and looks fine. The crushed rock has been laid about 12 to 14 inches thick in the center of the street and about 6 inches deep at the outer edge, where it adjoins the concrete gutter and curbing, and is rolled perfectly smooth with the big 10-ton steam roller, then a coating of finely crushed rock is spread over the top and also rolled smooth and the whole street rounded from center to the gutters upon either side.—Lancaster Journal.

UNDER THE PROTECTING WING OF MRS. SAGE, BIRDS WILL DEFY HUMAN ENEMIES

New York City.—According to Dr. W. T. Hornaday, head of the New York Zoological Garden, and others who ought to know, the recent acquisition by Mrs. Russell Sage, of Marsh Island, La., for a bird refuge, is the most important move in behalf of the birds of North America that has been made in many years. Marsh Island is the most important winter feeding ground for wild ducks and geese in the south, with the possible exception of Carrizick Sound.

Wild fowl of the central United States go to Marsh Island in winter for food and shelter when more northern streams and lakes are under ice. Millions of birds have been slaughtered there. Now, with this island in the control of the birds' friends, American wild fowl will increase enormously, experts say.

"It is the most important move in behalf of the birds of North America since the will of David Wilcox provided for financing the National Audubon society," declared Dr. Hornaday, speaking of Mrs. Sage's gift. "Every person who knows about the great annual migration of birds from the upper great lakes and plains down the Mississippi Valley to the Gulf will appreciate the vital need of feeding grounds along the Gulf that are protected from gunners. Today bird sanctuaries are just as necessary as bird food. The feeding grounds for birds in Louisiana and the absence of adequate laws for bird protection have made that state until this year a veritable dark and bloody ground. The slaughter of wild life has been incredible. It is a matter of official record that during one season, that of 1909-1910, a total of 426,585 game birds were killed in Louisiana.

"Nor does that include the vast numbers slaughtered by negroes and poor whites for food. At New Iberia, a short distance north of Marsh Island, at least, 10,000 robins are killed annually for food.

and American egrets—birds, cursed by the possession of plumes, which are literally worth their weight in gold. In two years time egrets of the Avery Island rookery, founded and protected for twenty years by Mr. McIlhenny, will find that Marsh Island is a safe haven of refuge. They will colonize it and twenty years from now it will contain 20,000 breeding pairs.

"Marsh Island is a great achievement. In its purchase and its dedication to the birds of America, Mrs. Sage has done a great public service."

Presbyterian Brotherhood to Hold
Mass Meeting At Which Civic Moral Conditions Will be Discussed.

Members of the Men's Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian church will take a hand in the war on vice and law enforcement in Janesville on Friday, October 25, when a public mass meeting will be held under their auspices in the Presbyterian church to discuss the situation and means for remedying the evils now prominent in the public eye. The topics to be discussed will be "Crime Within Our City," "The Cause of Crime in Janesville," "Enforcement of the Law," "Public Sentiment," "How the Young Men's Christian Association may be Made More Helpful to Men." These will be assigned to men prominent in church and civic improvement work. Immediately preceding the meeting, a supper will be served in the basement of the church and those desiring to attend are requested to notify Mr. B. C. Jackson or some other member of the executive committee a few days previous. It is understood that the mass meeting at the Presbyterian church will be followed by others of similar character in other Janesville churches.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

WHY WHO'S WHO.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

PROBABLY the most docile and obedient pompador to be found in this country adorns the head of "Fighting Bob" La Follette, the Wisconsin senator who is just now bombarding the Taft and Roosevelt camps with some of the most biting language in his possession. Those who have heard Senator La Follette when his bristles are in good working order will have to admit that he is some porcupine with the mother tongue.

The senator has had this pompador for a long time and never goes without it. As a rule, this coiffure lies back at an angle of forty-five degrees, in a peaceful recumbent position, but when the senator unleashes his battery of ripe red adjectives, vindictive personal pronouns and fervent epithets it rises to its feet and stands erect in a stiff and defiant attitude.

Senator La Follette comes honestly by his nickname. He has had to fight for everything he ever got and for a lot of things he didn't get. When he broke into the senate, he was about as welcome as a pegglegged man at a swell hop. He was immediately labeled as an untimely joke, and his audiences consisted of the reading clerk and the surrounding ozone.

They have had quite a change of scenery in the senate in the past three or four years, however, and now whenever Senator "Bob" gets up to deliver some strident sayings, nobody ducks into the cloak room and giggles. As a matter of fact, there are few resonant giggles left in the senate, anyway.

Senator La Follette has made a couple of scoring starts for the presidency, but being unable to count a quorum of delegates threw a shoe at the first quarter and retired with considerable precipitation. He is a young man, however, and is good for two or three more beats.

One thing can be said about the Wisconsin senator—he has placed a bunch of progressive laws on the statute book of his state, which none of his critics has ventured to rise up and attempt to repeal.

Ingenuous Swindler.

A laughable and ingenious fraud was played on two Glasgow (Scotland) women the other day. By representing to two housewives their husbands had fallen in the Clyde, and that he had been sent for a change of clothing, a man named Young received from the women the clothes asked, and appropriated them to his own use.

Was Good—Didn't Get Measles.

The subject of measles came up in a family that had a small boy in it. "Have you had the measles yet, Charles Robert?" asked the visitor. "No," the youngster replied. "I did think I was going to have them last week, but I was real good for three or four days, and I guess I won't have them now at all."

Heart to Heart Talks.

DIXIE.

Once more an attempt is being made to change the words of the song "Dixie."

It is said the words are awkward.

Possibly. And yet—

The words, such as they are, are married to the tune—inextricably wedded. What tradition and a reverent spirit hath joined together no man should put asunder.

It is proposed, for instance, to change the old words about "cinnamon seed and sandy bottom" to the following:

Oh, Dixie land is the land of glory.

The land of cherished song and story.

Which words may be good enough in their place, but they never will be permanently fitted to Dixie. The native flavor of the southland is in the homely "cinnamon seed and sandy bottom."

What a lot of "go" there is in the tune!

It is almost as popular in the north as in the south. You cannot wake up a listless American audience quicker than to start the band on those staccato notes. There is none other that will so bring men and women to their feet with beating pulses and flushed faces.

Let Dixie alone.

Lips that long are dust once breathed those "awkward" words. Embalmed in sacred recollection, to change them almost would amount to an insult to the dead.

"This itch to change or substitute new words for our national songs breaks out periodically. Not long ago it was 'The Star Spangled Banner' that was to be reformed in this particular.

That failed, because it deserved to fail. The words of that verse are fighting words, and they flamed up hot and patriotic from the soul of Francis Scott Key.

Let the old songs be.

Who would ask to change the choppy phrase of the "Marseillaise" dashed off in the fever of revolution? The words forever belong to the wild music. And the slow cadences of "The Watch on the Rhine" are no dearer to every lover of the fatherland than are the stanzas that fit it.

Let Dixie alone.

Because you cannot change the body of it without changing its immortal soul.

The Truth of the Old Fable.

The Grasshopper—I wouldn't work for that old-grouch Ant slaves for. The Ladybug—What's the racket now?

The Grasshopper—Just look what a pretty sunny day it is. Everybody's going to the picnic. When I asked Ant to come along he said he didn't think he could get off.—St. Louis Republic.

Never Comes Back.

SOUSA'S BAND.

While it is universally conceded that John Philip Sousa has written some of the finest marches known to the world and has been hailed as the "March King" in every part of the globe, he asserts that if reputation depended on marches, and if he was asked to go around the world with the Band playing marches only, he would step out and retire. "I have made some reputation from the standpoint of versatility and progress," says Sousa, "and to follow the traditional line is not for me. I flatter myself that I have built up a new instrumental body that can compare with the best symphony orchestra in the world, and I would never agree to confine myself to one kind of composition or one composer, even though that composer be myself. My band was not built in a day, or in a year, and when it was finished it didn't have a set of champion soloists with a lot of poor supports. It was all soloists."

It was this band, in its most perfect form, that Sousa took entirely around the world, and he might accept her sentence; and the article on the Trinity tenements told, among other things, how adversely such conditions affected the coming race. These elements fused into a connected story of the young wife who stole in order that her baby might be born in a place where babies are not stunted before birth.

"Kindling," as Kenyon has written it, has one quality which nineteen dramas out of twenty lack—"the punch." It reaches across the footlights. Along with the laugh it brings the tears from eyes unused to weep; and it sends people away thinking many things about life as it is and is to be, and about tenements. Kenyon achieved a surety of touch for which others struggle through many years and many productions.

Unusual interest in the local engagement has developed since the announcement of the attraction here.

the world, the great tour being the most successful on record. Criticisms, innumerable from every land, were so universally full of praise that Sousa can feel assured that his work has given him credit for accomplishing even more than he set out to do. Sousa and his band will be here at Myers theatre Monday Oct. 14 matinee only at 2.15 with three soloists, Miss Virginia Root, soprano, Miss Nicolene Zedder, violinist and Herbert L. Clark, cornetist. These are the same soloists who went around the world with the band.

"KINDLING"

The remarkable play "Kindling," which is to be presented in this city by the United Play Company at Myers theatre Thursday Oct. 31 was written by Charles Kenyon, a Californian who has come before the public only once before—as author of "The Flag Station," a one-act vaudiville playlet. After he left Stanford University in the early years of the century, Kenyon followed many occupations, including acting in "ten-twenty-three" theatrical companies, writing daily humor for a newspaper and punching cattle by way of breaking tuberculosis. Through it all he dabbled with playwriting, his steadfast ambition. Then Acton Davies, as the public heard, wrote an appealing "news story" for the New York Evening Sun—the report of an incident which he witnessed in police court. Kenyon on a visit to New York saw that story, cut it out of the newspaper and slipped it into a magazine for safe-keeping. When he opened the magazine again he found the clipping lying between an article on the Trinity tenements. "Kindling" was born in that moment. Acton Davies' news story told of a convicted woman thief whose husband had asked that attraction, prices will remain the as usual and reserved seats can be secured at the box office. Remember "A Millionaire Tramp" will only appear here Sunday Oct. 13 matinee and night this season so avail yourself of the opportunity of seeing this comedy treat.

Success Comes in "Cans"

Failure In "Can'ts"

The boy who says he can't is probably right. The boy who THINKS failure will surely MEET it.

The fellows who get raised without asking for it are those who try to do everything ---those who say "I CAN."

Don't say you "can't" earn more money, because you "can." It all depends upon yourself.

Nowadays it's the education that cashes in---and remember, there's a difference between a good education and the RIGHT education.

Why Not Learn Stenotypy?

The new substitute for Shorthand. The Stenotype does for shorthand what the Typewriter did for longhand—make it readable.

Those who have difficulty reading shorthand or those who think they cannot learn shorthand should decide now to learn the use of the Stenotype. It can be learned in a third less time than shorthand and is as legible as longhand. Be one of the first to begin and thus improve your position.

Challenges The American Market For Power

Leaving out prices, compare these motors with any car made. We don't exclude the extremely high priced cars.

There is more power in these 1913 Mitchell motors than you'll find anywhere else.

Piston displacement governs power; economy, long life, flexibility, and ease of handling come from the long stroke if properly designed. Mitchell motors are properly designed. They are the T-head type. This year they have a longer stroke than ever. They give more power than ever.

$1500 models, 4 cylinders 4 1/4 by 7, called 45 h. p., give 53 on block test, 397.21 cu. in. piston displacement.

$1850 models, 6 cylinders 3 3/4 by 6, called 50 h. p., gives 57 on block test, 397.60 cu. in. piston displacement.

$2500 model, 6 cylinders, 4 1/4 by 7, called 60 h. p., gives 61 on block test, 595.82 cu. in. piston displacement.
